Russia Aids Laos

VIENTIANE (UPI)—Laotian Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma announced today acceptance of Soviet Russia's offer of economic assistance, apparently in line with his neutralist government's policy to accept aid from any country "without strings attached."

Revolt Crushed

KATMANDU, Nepal (Reuters)—The Nepalese government said today police have crushed an attempt to overthrow the government in the Gorkha district of West Nepal. It said police opened fire on a crowd of 3,000 persons who surrounded government offices, killing seven and injuring six.

Flood Threat

LONDON (Reuters)—Rivers swollen by 24 hours of continuous rain rose rapidly in the west and south of England today, threatening serious flooding.

PARIS (UPI)—Angry right wing youths shouting for a "French Algeria" tossed tear gas bombs tonight into a left bank Latin quarter building jammed with 4,000 students demonstrating for a peaceful end to the Algerian war.

The tear gas bombing brought chaos to the huge demonstration at the heavily guarded Mutualities hall, but there were no immediate reports of any casualties or arrests.

The 4,000 students were inside the hall, while another 6,000 to 7,000 were outside chanting "Peace in Algeria" while a student orator urged them on under a revolving

Club-Swinging Police Smash Rioters

Police made several charges into groups of demonstrators, swinging their white clubs with gusto. One young man fell to the ground with blood streaming down his face.

All traffic was halted in the narrow streets of the Bohemian student section as the singing, chanting crowds swarmed into the area in their monster demonstration for "Peace in Algeria." Thousands of tough, battle-ready police

UN World Refugee Project Big Success

INDIRECT SLAP AT KENNEDY

Ike Urges 'Safe' Choice

STANTON, Va. (UPI)—President Eisenhower said today that on election day the American people must choose between "false leaders" and "safe leaders."

The president, who flew here for a sentimental visit to his mother's birthplace and to honor the memory of Woodrow Wilson, made the statement in a speech extolling the First World War president. Eisenhower also praised and identified himself with Sen. Harry F. Byrd, Virginia's senior Democrat who has with-held endorsing Sen. John F. Kennedy's bid for the presidency.

In his speech praising Wilson, Eisenhower said "he was not a man who believed in bruising the ears of his fellow men with shrill cries of alarm."

Although the president's speech was officially labeled non-political by the White House, this appeared to be an indirect slap at Kennedy. The Massachusetts senator has sharply criticized the Eisenhower administration and charged that U.S. prestige abroad has deteriorated.

Fleming Stands Firm On Dual Tax Proposal

ONTARIO TOO

Bennett Seeks 50-50 Split

OTTAWA (CP)—British Columbia is willing to take over the programs on which costs now are shared with the federal government if she gets a 50-50-50 formula on rental of income tax and succession duties, Premier Bennett said today.

He told reporters following a session of the Dominion-provincial fiscal conference that, if the federal government is sincere in maintaining that provinces which spend tax money should levy the taxes, the B.C. proposal should be acceptable.

His offer, similar to that of Ontario's Premier Frost, would involve the provinces receiving half the total collections from personal and corporation income taxes and succession duties.

Under the present tax-rental agreement, due to expire March 31, 1962, the provinces receive about one-seventh of personal income tax collections, one-fifth of corporation income tax collections and half of succession duties.

Premier Bennett said that in return for adoption of his formula B.C. would take over the Trans-Canada Highway program, hospital insurance plan and various shared-cost social assistance schemes. But it would not include the universal old age pension, paid to all at age 70 entirely by the federal government.

He also said the suggestion of Premier Manning of Alberta for a joint tax imposed by the federal and provincial governments appeals to him.

Bail Set At $25,000 For Thornton

VANCOUVER (CP)—Bail was set at $25,000 today by Chief Justice A. C. DesBrisay in British Columbia Supreme Court for Clyde W. Thornton, a contractor from Bonner's Ferry, Idaho, convicted of contempt of court.

Chief Justice DesBrisay told lawyers at the hearing that if Thornton cannot raise the necessary bonds, the court will expedite the hearing of his appeal against his conviction.

Thornton has been held at Oakalla prison since his conviction last Wednesday on the charge. Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi was fined $1,000 on a similar charge and both have since launched appeals.

A lawyer for Burton Glazer, of Seattle, who had brought the contempt charges, asked that bail be set at $30,000. Thornton's lawyer asked for $5,000 bail.

Thornton and Mr. Gagliardi were found guilty by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris of contempt for ignoring an injunction issued a year ago that no money be paid to Thornton by the highways department until $25,516 that Thornton had been found to owe Glazer was paid to a receiver.

Instead, the department sent a cheque for $79,000 to Thornton's bank at Bonner's Ferry.

CPR Plans Drastic Cutback

OTTAWA (CP)—Large-scale reductions in unprofitable passenger trains are planned by the Canadian Pacific Railway in the next 20 years, CPR Vice-President R. A. Emerson told the MacPherson royal commission on transportation today.

Mr. Emerson said the privately-owned CPR plans to scrap about $64,000,000 worth of passenger equipment, abandon many passenger runs and go all-out for money-making freight.

"This does not mean that passenger train service will disappear," he said in a major CPR brief that flatly opposed provincial proposals for federal subsidies on key branch lines or passenger runs that are losing money.

BURDEN IS HEAVY

The CPR officer said the burden of passenger losses amounted to $15,500,000 in 1958.

The passenger problem was outlined in an 84-page brief that spelled out CPR policies for the future—a brand-new public blueprint of a major revolution in railroading, on the privately-owned carrier in the wake of mounting competition.

Some major points in the CPR brief:

1. Effective Jan. 1, 1961, free privileges on the CPR are to be cancelled or restricted except for CPR employees, their dependents, certain government officials whose work takes them on trains, and several other categories including rail union officials.

2. The federal government should pay the railways for free transportation granted by law to MPs and senators.

3. Approval of the Board of Transport Commissioners is to be sought this year to abandon five branch lines totalling 77 miles in Western Canada and four branch lines involving 63 miles in the East.

TROOPS PULL OUT

Belgians 'Penetrating' Leopoldville

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—Unruly Congolese troops today pulled out of most—but not all—parts of Leopoldville and into nearby barracks.

The withdrawal was demanded by the United Nations after the troops ran wild here for several days.

It was agreed on Wednesday when Congolese army strongman Col. Joseph Mobutu conferred with UN officials here.

Meanwhile, reliable sources said the UN here had evidence of increased Belgian "penetration" into the Congolese central and provincial administrations.

They said the Belgians had succeeded in re-establishing their political influence in Leopoldville and in strengthening their already strong control in breakaway Katanga province.

More Talks Planned

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming made more emphatic today the federal government's desire that the provinces shoulder the responsibility of levying their own share of income tax and succession duty.

He apparently gave the 10 premiers at the Dominion-provincial tax conference no hope that the federal government will boost its own taxes to meet their demands for more money.

The new federal tax offer, Mr. Fleming said, has opened the door to the provinces to raise more money on their own responsibility.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated to reporters that a further round of tax talks is likely, after the current three-day meetings end Friday, before a final decision is reached on a new tax deal to succeed the present plan which expires March 31, 1962.

MANY VIEWS HELD

He referred to "the multiplicity of views" presented by the 10 provinces at this meeting, and said "I wouldn't rule out the possibility" of a further conference. The current sessions are the second round of talks. The first conference was held in July.

There appeared no lessening of provincial opposition to the federal proposal to discard, after March 31, 1962, the present tax-rental system. Under this system, in most provinces, Ottawa collects all the personal and corporation income taxes and succession duties and turns over an agreed share to the provinces.

The federal proposal that the provinces should levy their own share of these tax fields, offered the provinces no greater share of the tax pie than they now get unless they are willing to boost taxes themselves.

Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland told reporters that eight provinces clearly want to continue the tax-rental system, while the other two are not opposed to it.

ALTERNATIVE OFFERED

Alberta's Premier Manning, who spoke at the closed conference today, suggested an alternative plan—a joint income tax and succession duty in which the two levels of government would share responsibility for taxing and divide the proceeds.

The Newfoundland and Alberta premiers wound up the round of provincial replies to Prime Minister Diefenbaker's proposal unveiled Wednesday.

Finance Minister Fleming's reply to the premiers—made in the closed sessions and relayed later to reporters by one of his staff—made clear that the federal government so far is not budging from its proposal.

He said it is impossible for Ottawa to boost its taxes to meet all the financial demands of the provinces.

If all the demands were legitimate, someone would have to raise larger revenues to meet the needs. The question, he said, boiled down to who was going to do this.

OTTAWA WANTS OUT

His statement, as reported to the press, made clear that the federal government doesn't want the responsibility.

The federal government's own expenditures were heavy and would undoubtedly become heavier.

Mr. Fleming said 31.5 per

'Good Faith' Plea By U.S. on Arms

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The United States said today that a step-by-step disarmament program could be completed in five to six years, if work on it started now in good faith from East and West.

"With good faith and a sense of urgency on both sides, it could take even less," U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth told the United Nations main political committee.

Wadsworth based his timetable on an assertion by Soviet Ambassador Valerian A. Zorin earlier this week that before conclusion of an agreement on Russian Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's proposal for total disarmament within four years there should be agreement on "some measures for confidence between states and creation of a more favorable atmosphere."

British Minister of State David Trimble today had asserted that Russia's insistence on a single, wrap-up treaty on all aspects of the problem could delay disarmament for 40 years. Zorin had retorted that the Western proposals could delay disarmament for 100 to 200 years.

SOVIET RAPS NIXON A-TEST 'DEADLINE'

GENEVA (UPI)—The Soviet Union today criticized Vice President Richard Nixon's announced intention to impose a Feb. 1 deadline on the nuclear test ban talks here if he is elected president.

After today's 250th session, Soviet Delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin called Nixon's statement Wednesday night in Toledo, Ohio (see page 18), "an election campaign statement."

Tsarapkin said the Soviet Union is willing to hurry up and conclude a treaty, but the U.S. position "does not permit it."

Sharp Warning by West On Berlin Travel Curb

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States, Britain and France have warned Russia that any interference with air corridors into Berlin would create a "dangerous situation" for which the Soviet government "would be held fully responsible," it was disclosed today.

In identical notes delivered in Moscow Wednesday and released in the western capitals today, the three Western powers took a firm stand against recent -growing Communist pressures on the "potentially explosive Berlin situation."

At the same time, the Allies released the text of another set of identical Western notes to Russia dated Sept. 12.

These accused the East German authorities of "harassing" persons travelling to Berlin "by prolonged delays in rail and road traffic, subjection to frivolous police interrogation, and in many cases outright denial of passage."

"More than 1,000 individuals," the Sept. 12 notes said, "were thus, without cause, denied use of rail or road."

The U.S. Sept. 12 note said, "The United States government has never recognized any limitations on the freedom of movement within 'greater Berlin.'" It tailed the latest restrictions a "grave violation of Berlin's four-power status."

PUNISH, 'DON'T 'TREAT' CRIMINAL-CHURCHMAN

LONDON (Reuters)—William Cardinal Godfrey, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Westminster, Wednesday called for more emphasis on punishment and less on "treatment" of criminals. "Let us hear more about the freedom of the righteous citizens and less about the freedom of the law-breaker," he told the public morality council.

THIS WORLD OF OURS

People and Things

CHICAGO—A sentimental Scotswoman got two pounds of dried white and purple heather from her native Scotland recently and offered to share it with the public.

The bloomin' heather, she said, is just a bloomin' pain now.

The offer brought a flood of mail to Mrs. James Thomson, 74, of suburban Wauconda.

"Tis hysterical," she said Wednesday as she reported receiving 661 letters since she made her offer in a story in The Tribune last Sunday.

"I wrote my friend in Scotland by air mail begging her to send more immediately," Mrs. Thomson said.

Lots of the letters, she said, aren't even from folks of Scottish descent. Names indicate German, Italian, Irish, Polish, and English ancestry.

"They say they've never seen heather," moaned Mrs. Thomson. "I'm afraid they're in for a terrible disappointment. It's not much to look at, dried—except to a Scotsman."

VIENNA — Her love unreturned, 21-year-old Theresa Grubmueller took drastic steps to attract the object of her affections.

She burned down her family farm.

"I thought that Freddy (Muehlbacher) would see the fire and come comfort me after he put it out," Theresa sobbed, heartbroken, to police later.

The fire blazed for two hours, demolishing the farmhouse, but her flame never turned up to help.

"He still hasn't come to comfort me," Theresa wept.

PHILADELPHIA — Magistrate Vincent Dean Wednesday freed James Stewart, an accused numbers runner, for allegedly booking a 60-cent bet because, the magistrate said, he couldn't see the justice of it.

'Vast Schemes For Mass Murder'

LONDON (Reuters) — British philosopher Bertrand Russell appealed today for mass support for his new movement of non-violent resistance to nuclear weapons.

Russell, 88, issued a statement declaring that "the vast schemes of mass murder which are being hatched—nominally for our protection but in fact for universal extermination—are a horror and an abomination."

Russell, an earl, recently resigned as president of Britain's Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament in a leadership split over his plan for non-violent resistance. He was joined in today's statement by Rev. Michael Scott, a campaigner for nuclear disarmament and African rights.

They declared that official American and British statements about civil defence more "grossly misleading." The danger arose from nuclear fallout "is much greater than the authorities wish the population to believe," Russell and Scott said in their statement.

SEATTLE — Young Legson Kayira may be stranded in Khartoum, Sudan, but if the students at Skagit Valley junior college in Mount Vernon have anything to say about it, he'll make it yet.

Kayira of Karonga, Nyasaland, left home two years ago to hitchhike to this country and eventually to Skagit Valley J.C., where he has been admitted on a full scholarship. A "Funds for Kayira" campaign was started at the junior college when word reached there that, because of lack of funds, the 22-year-old student was stalled in Khartoum—2,000 miles from his starting point.

Dr. George Hodson, dean of students at Skagit Valley, said $160 of a goal of $650 has been raised.

LODI, Calif. — Alfred Schweitz, 65, was ordered to appear in court today to answer charges of driving without a licence. Schweitz draws full state benefits for blindness.

OTTAWA — Jeweler Jack Snow is willing to pay $1,000 for a $1 bill—if it is the right one.

The dollar bill he wants must bear serial number AM 1072844. The digits represent the hour, day, month and year he opened his first store in Ottawa, at 10 a.m., July 28, 1944.

Mr. Snow, who now operates several stores in Ottawa and area, says it's no publicity contest. He just wants a keepsake.

Sharp Gain in Exports Helps Cut Trade Deficit

OTTAWA (CP) — Sharp gains in overseas exports, along with only a fractional rise in imports combined to shave Canada's trade deficit to $120,500,000 in the first nine months of 1960—less than a third of the imbalance a year earlier.

Exports at $3,995,400,000 showed a rise of 8.2 per cent from the comparable 1959 period, pushing the nine-month figure to its highest level of any similar period since the end of the Second World War.

Imports rose fractionally to $4,115,900,000, as against $4,107,800,000 a year earlier.

Much of the advance came in the July-September period, when exports soared to $1,393,200,000, another postwar peak for the quarter and outstripped imports to produce an $83,000,000 surplus.

For the whole of 1959 Canada had a foreign trade deficit of $380,000,000—roughly double the 1958 figure.

SALES TO U.K. UP

Most significant feature of the nine-month export trade was a 20-per-cent rise in shipments to the United Kingdom, the rest of the Commonwealth and other overseas countries. Shipments to the United States were virtually unchanged.

Imports from the U.K. advanced slightly, those from the other Commonwealth countries showed a substantial gain, and buying from other foreign nations declined. The import total from the U.S. remained unchanged.

Canada's nine-month deficit with the United States dipped slightly to $485,600,000 from $488,500,000 in the same period last year. The U.S. took 57.6 per cent of Canada's exports and supplied 67.8 per cent of the goods brought into this country.

Last year's nine-month deficit with non-Commonwealth foreign countries of $79,700,000 was turned into a $92,400,000 surplus this year.

Canada's trade surplus with the U.K. nearly doubled to $232,800,000 from $130,800,000 in the first nine months of 1958. The surplus with other Commonwealth countries rose to $39,900,000 from $22,700,000.

Vacant Tory Seat To Be Hot Topic

By-election will be a major topic tonight when federal Conservatives of Esquimalt-Saanich riding hold their annual meeting.

The Esquimalt-Saanich seat in parliament is vacant following appointment of Gen.

George Pearkes as B.C. lieutenant-governor.

Tonight's meeting is expected to discuss possibilities of the by-election—expected soon. Date for a nominating convention may be set.

Several names have been mentioned as possible candidates, including that of Vancouver lawyer John Pearkes, son of the lieutenant-governor.

The man who stirred up a storm by his premature candidacy—before Gen. Pearkes' appointment—lawyer Gowan Guest, is not expected to appear.

The meeting will be held in Lake Hill Woman's Institute Hall at 8 p.m.

Slick Dresser Gunned Down In Gang War

TORONTO (CP) — An expensively-dressed man with a jail record reaching between Ontario and British Columbia was found shot to death today in what police described as a gangland murder.

Dapper Lorne Gibson, 35, died with three revolver bullets through the back of his head and neck.

A police theory was that Gibson, who had a long criminal record involving narcotics, was driven to the laneway in east-central Toronto by gangsters and stood up against a garage wall for execution for some unknown motive.

NIXON ACCUSED

'Another Pearson Smear'

NEW YORK (UPI) — A charge by newspaper columnist Drew Pearson that industrialist Howard Hughes received government favors after making a loan to Vice-President Richard M. Nixon's brother was called "absolute nonsense" today by Nixon's presidential campaign director.

Robert N. Finch said Pearson's report Wednesday contained "many false allegations" and "to come up in the last days of the campaign makes it another Pearson smear."

Pearson said Wednesday night in Washington:

"I should be delighted to produce photostats of the secret deeds, transfers and other documents pertaining to the Howard Hughes loan, and show them on television with Don Nixon or Howard Hughes or Robert M. Finch present to deny them."

NO COMMENT

Nixon himself made no comment on Pearson's column but the vice-president's brother, smilingly told a reporter in New York: "Let's just say I have no comment."

Pearson's syndicated column said Hughes' attorney, Frank J. Waters, advanced $205,000 to Don Nixon through Mrs. Hannah M. Nixon, mother of the vice-president and Don Nixon.

Pearson said that at the time of the loan in December, 1956 Hughes, who has substantial holdings in Trans-World Airlines (TWA) and RKO Pictures, had "various important matters before the government."

BETTER TREATMENT

"Many of these problems got better treatment after the loan," Pearson said. "Whether the improvement was connected with the loan is not known."

Pearson said the vice-president had asked Waters to "help out" his brother and that the loan had not been repaid.

Finch said the loan transaction was closed several years ago.

"The story alleges that a loan was made to Don Nixon and that in some way the vice-president is implicated, and that Hughes benefitted," Finch said in Washington. "That is absolute nonsense."

A spokesman for Sen. John F. Kennedy, Nixon's opponent in the presidential race, said in Detroit the senator would have no comment.

SOVIET HOVERCRAFT

LONDON (Reuters)—Soviet designers have developed a 400-ton sea hovercraft vessel which can travel five or six feet above the water at a speed of about 106 to 125 miles an hour, the Soviet news agency Tass said today. The air cushion on which it skims over water is formed by a compressor which sucks in air, and then ejects it through special nozzles on the bottom of the ship.

Spy Gets Out November 18

WASHINGTON (AP)—David Greenglass, confessed atomic spy who was the chief government witness in a 1951 trial of Ethel and Julius Rosenberg, is scheduled to be released from prison Nov. 18. The federal board of parole said Greenglass will complete the minimum term of his 15-year sentence, with time off for good behavior, on that date. The Rosenbergs were executed in 1953 as atomic spies for Russia. Mrs. Rosenberg was Greenglass' sister.

ENROLLMENT BOOSTS BUILDING NEED

Five Years in Three, College 'Crash Program'

By FRANK RUTTER

The astonishing increase in Victoria College enrollment this year may force a "crash program" to squeeze its five-year building program into three years.

Officials are frankly shaken by the fall enrollment of 1,400 students. There were only 1,062 a year ago. Expectations were for 1,250 this year.

A complete overhaul of the building program appears certain.

It would involve moving ahead some of the most pressing projects—cafeteria and library—which were to have been among the later ones in plans to spend almost $3,000,000 by 1964.

Pressure Mounts

It would also involve re-adjustment of financing, including an approach to the B.C. government to speed its matching grants.

The five-year program was launched with a public fund drive last year for $2,500,000. A development board was created to co-ordinate the entire project.

First project under way is a $325,000 block for classrooms and faculty offices which should be completed by the end of this year.

Second project was to have been a $2,000,000 three-wing science block, containing lecture theatre, offices and laboratories.

Next was to have come a $300,000 boiler room to heat these blocks, then, starting in mid-1961 a $1,000,000 library, $50,000 worth of alterations to the existing Ewing administrative building, and finally a $320,000 students' union building and cafeteria to start in 1963 for use in 1964.

Now the new term has started the development board can see the immense pressure of the enrollment on existing facilities.

2,000 By 1962

The board believes enrollment may be 1,800 next year, 2,000 by 1962. These are conservative estimates.

Alterations to existing boiler rooms have made it possible to provide sufficient heating for immediate needs, so the new boiler project can be held until late 1961.

If possible the college wants plans under way on the cafeteria and library as soon as possible this winter.

It wants to start building these projects and the science building in 1961.

Members feel the entire program could possibly be finished by late 1962, certainly by early '63.

However, one of the keys is the timing of the provincial government matching grants—pledged up to a total of $2,500,000 over five years.

Autonomy Bid

This year the first $500,000 payment was made.

To assure the speed-up the college would need more than $500,000 a year. It would need the money within three years.

Most of the rest of the funds required are pledged by private donors. It may be necessary to obtain short-term loans to cover some of this amount

Nikita Winning Support For Assembly Arms Debate

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — Diplomatic straws-in-the-wind today indicated probable success for Soviet Premier Khrushchev in his demand for a special meeting of the United Nations General Assembly on disarmament alone.

Neutralist Indonesia was the latest country to back Khrushchev's plan in the disarmament debate in the assembly's 99-member political committee Wednesday.

Diplomatic sources said that—with the committee apparently heading toward another East-West impasse—it was likely that Khrushchev would have his way about an emergency meeting, probably in Geneva, in the spring.

Khrushchev threatened a Soviet boycott of the committee unless his proposals for general and complete disarmament, tied to a drastic reshaping of the UN secretariat, were accepted as the basis of negotiations.

WEST WON'T ACCEPT

This is unacceptable to the West, and Soviet Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin virtually assured the committee Tuesday that the walkout would take place.

Khrushchev's proposal called for a heads-of-government meeting that would concentrate on disarmament alone, not becoming involved with the many topics of debate inevitable at a regular meeting of the assembly.

Western fears are that such a 99-member meeting would become an oratorical fiesta rather than a session in which serious negotiation on disarmament would be undertaken. Despite such fears, "it would be difficult to turn down an invitation to talk disarmament," one diplomat said.

Canada is plugging for comparatively small disarmament bodies—negotiating, scientific and "watchdog" committees—which could get down-to-hard facts, in close association with the 99-member UN disarmament commission.

In the Canadian view, the prospect of a special assembly meeting makes it all the more necessary that the present assembly make some progress on negotiating itself.

By establishing a negotiating or advisory body of efficient size, preparations could be made for the big meeting, sources say.

Blunt and Painful

MR. DIEFENBAKER'S PROPOSAL to provincial premiers that they set their own income and corporation tax rates—and assume responsibility for them—is blunt and politically painful.

It is not surprising that several premiers have rejected the scheme. It could develop, as Mr. Douglas says, into the "tax jungle" of earlier days. But the public will be excused for assuming that premiers don't like the plan because it would identify them inseparably with tax collections from their own people. Under the present system they escape direct association with those collections.

Adoption of such a scheme would, of course, mark a return to two separately assessed levies in these fields, though Ottawa might remain the agency through which both tax payments were collected.

This is the obvious answer to the pressure some provincial premiers have brought to bear on the federal Government for "better deals" for their provinces. Mr. Fleming has indicated what the most recent of these demands would mean to the federal treasury. It could not meet them under existing revenue conditions without going even more heavily into deficit than it is going now.

Mr. Diefenbaker is completely justified in the course he has taken. Mr. Bennett says the proposals are "totally unrealistic." That is odd comment from the premier of one of the richest, highest spending and most heavily taxed provinces who has seen nothing "unrealistic" in his familiar role of Oliver Twist asking for more under the tax rental agreement.

The public will note with mixed feelings the report that Mr. Diefenbaker has agreed to Premier Frost's suggestion that a constitutional amendment be passed to permit provinces to levy an indirect sales tax at the retail level.

If this is a device to hide from the individual shopper the fact that he is paying a provincial sales tax—five per cent for instance in British Columbia—it might make provincial administrations which collect these taxes more popular.

But why should a purchaser not be reminded of the fact that he is paying a sales tax and that the tax is used to provide certain services for him?

Let him overlook the payments he makes, let him be lulled into the mistaken impression that he is receiving services "free," and his appetite for the latter will grow.

Of course he will have to pay for the services, whether he knows it or not. And if he is unaware of the price, he may very easily demand something he cannot afford. When his tax is specifically stated when he is reminded of it with every purchase, at least he knows what he is paying and can govern himself accordingly.

The Real Victims

FOR THE THIRD TIME, ON November 19, a school-building bylaw will be submitted to residents of School District 63, which comprises Central Saanich and the northern part of Saanich.

On the two previous occasions the bylaw was defeated, a surprising development in view of the urgent need for increased accommodation. The voters' rejection was interpreted as a protest against the mounting tax levies on property, and an argument in favor of greater assumption of education costs by the provincial Government.

Property owners have a valid point in protesting their tax burden. But is it the best means of protest to deprive children of adequate school quarters? About 500 pupils today are attending school only half-time in District-63. They go during the morning or afternoon and get by as best they can. They must do this because there are not sufficient classrooms for all of them at one time.

Is this good enough in the twentieth century, in a country of Canada's economic and cultural standing?

Other classes must meet in makeshift basement quarters. Next year there will be still more children needing accommodation, needing the best schooling possible to prepare them for life in a complex world.

When voters reject new school buildings as a form of protest against the Government, are not the children the chief victims? By all means work to effect better financial arrangements for the municipalities and school districts. But let us provide proper educational facilities while we do it. With or without lower taxes, the public of tomorrow is going to need all the education it can obtain.

Strength in Elasticity

PRIME MINISTER ABDUL Rahman of Malaya says the British Commonwealth must tighten its links or face disintegration. On that point he will run into considerable argument within the Commonwealth.

When what is now the Commonwealth was the British Empire the links were tight. They could be held that way because a central government exercised authority over empire members to a far greater degree than it does today.

During relatively recent years—in some cases during recent months—members of the family have acquired a status of independence. They have, however, maintained the association which is implicit in the Commonwealth and have found the strength that comes from that association.

The strength is increased by the elasticity of Commonwealth bonds. They stretch when firmer, more brittle fastenings would break.

The Malayan Prime Minister believes that "unless the principle is accepted of agreement by majority there is a danger that the present loosely-knit association may become a farce, disintegrating into a coffee-house discussion because of indecision."

Apply that principle to Pakistan and India. What majority decision would solve their private dispute without driving one or the other out of the family?

In time, persuasion may effect the compromise necessary to solve the differences between the two tenants of the subcontinent. Hard, firm, explicit judgment by a majority vote of members of the Commonwealth could effect little progress toward reconciliation.

When the future of the British Commonwealth is considered, the Malayan spokesmen may expect to hear the application of the theme of an old French fable about the oak and the reed. Under the gale, the reed bent, the oak was broken.

The Wrong Remedy

PREMIER FROST OF ONTARIO has spoken, before the royal commission on the automotive industry, what many Canadians are thinking. He says that the industry is not giving the public what it wants, that there has been too much concentration on non-essential chrome, fins, colors, style and size, when what is wanted in most cases is utility transportation.

All these factors put the price up, increase repair and insurance costs, and help to put the product beyond the reach of too many people.

Automobile purchasers have admired the luxury creations produced on this continent—but in increasing numbers they have been putting their money into smaller, more practical vehicles from Britain and Europe. At a late date, manufacturers on this side of the Atlantic realized the trend and began to cater to the new demand.

But one means of meeting the overseas competition in Canada has been to call for increased tariff and tax charges on the imported automobiles. This has already been recognized in the federal Government's decision to raise the valuation on such cars, thus increasing the import levies and the price to the consumer.

Surely the remedy lies within the industry and not in government action. Surely the way to find more purchasers for Canadian cars is to get the price of the product down, not up. For no government action that puts up the price of competing foreign cars will do anything to reduce the price of the home product.

Cuba and the U.S. Election

MR. KENNEDY is pressing for a fifth TV debate, and Mr. Nixon, after explaining that he was too busy, is now in favor of a fifth, provided it is devoted exclusively to the subject of Castro.

Mr. Kennedy's main reason for wanting another debate is that this is the best way he can meet some last minute surprise, some last minute "crisis" which his opponents may bring off. Mr. Nixon's reason is that he thinks he has found in Cuba a good talking point.

On the whole, it is better, I would say, to have a fifth debate than not to have it. But to devote it exclusively to Castro would be preposterous.

Castro is not all that important. To set him up as the main issue to decide who should be president of the United States is beneath the dignity of this country.

Campaign Issue

Having said this, I must admit that I have not liked Mr. Kennedy's making so much of a campaign issue of Cuba. Although he is right in criticizing the support which we gave to Batista, although he is sound in his criticism of our support of other Latin American dictators and of our general failure to support and sympathize with the progressive movements in Latin America, I do not think he is right when he talks as if there were anything effective which this country can now do to get rid of Castro.

The policy of the administration since the fall of Batista has been, so I believe, about the best that was possible given all the circumstances.

However, until last week Mr. Kennedy was on a sound line when he attacked the general policy of the administration in its relations with dictators, reactionaries, and progressives in Latin America. Then he made a mistake, which was to make it sound as if he were promising support to the Cuban enemies, barring the Batista men, of Castro.

Not Infallible

This was contrary to the letter and the spirit of our many treaties and pledges made to our American neighbors. Mr. Kennedy, who would, I believe, make much the better president, is not infallible. He is human and it is human to err.

Mr. Nixon's show of righteous indignation is, however, false and insincere. What he is advocating is an "economic and political quarantine" of Castro's Cuba. This is false on two counts.

In the first place what the administration is doing in Cuba is not, as administration experts are at great pains to explain, a political and economic quarantine. If it were, it would be a major violation of that very Inter-American Treaty which Mr. Nixon quotes against Mr. Kennedy.

Moreover, what Mr. Kennedy advocated looks towards doing in Cuba what the administration, as all the world knows, did do in Guatemala. The only difference is that Mr. Kennedy very unwisely said what he would do about Cuba in the future, whereas the Eisenhower administration has been boasting about what it did do in the past in Guatemala.

What this shows is that neither side seems to have learned the lesson, so flagrantly illustrated in the U-2 affair, that when a government goes into the political black market it must keep its mouth shut.

General Doctrine

The general doctrine, of which Mr. Kennedy's mistake is an application, is in the old American tradition, which was strongly enunciated by Woodrow Wilson, that the governments of our adversaries should be overthrown. This was the doctrine which the late John Foster Dulles wrote into the Republican platform of 1952.

As a policy, it has not worked and has had to be abandoned. The worst thing about it is that it misleads our friends and subjects them to dangers against which we are powerless to protect them.

A tragic example of this occurred on Nov. 4, 1956, during the Hungarian uprisings and the Russian invasion to suppress it. There was an emergency meeting of the Security Council that day, and Mr. Harry Cabot Lodge was not only the American spokesman but, because Mr. Dulles had had to go to the hospital for an operation, was the head of the American delegation.

'Will Not Fail'

Three hours after the Russian radio had announced the military attack on the uprising in Budapest, Mr. Lodge said to the Security Council, "We can truly say to the Hungarian people, 'By your heroic sacrifice you have given the United Nations a brief moment in which to mobilize the conscience of the world on your behalf. We are seizing that moment, and we will not fail you.'"

This promise of help was preceded by Mr. Lodge's saying, "If ever there was a time when the action of the United Nations could literally be a matter of life and death for a whole nation, this is that time. . . . Shortly after midnight I requested a Sunday meeting of the Security Council to deal with this agony of the Hungarian people. Five minutes later the fact of this request was broadcast by Radio Budapest. That shows how quickly what we say and do here affects the people of Hungary in their struggle."

We all know now that what we did was nothing and that the promise of help was not fulfilled. It is a lesson in why a government must never make promises which it cannot surely fulfill. (Copyright 1960, N.Y. Herald Tribune Inc.)

The Power Behind the Dam

IT IS a notable event when a public man, single-handedly, scores the greatest triumph of his career. This is especially so when the fruits of the triumph go not at all to himself—save in credit—but entirely to his country.

General the Hon. A. G. L. McNaughton, aged 73, chairman of the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission, to give him his official styling—he is "Andy" McNaughton to all who know him—has had one of the most unusual careers in Canadian military and public life.

He fought in many real battles in World War I. He prepared for but never fought in any of the battles of World War II. He engaged in and was overwhelmingly defeated in a short political engagement in 1944-45.

But of all the varied contests and strivings of a long life spent mostly at what might be termed the command posts of military or public affairs, the battle of the Columbia river marks the greatest achievement in General McNaughton's career.

The writer followed the Columbia river negotiations very closely, from 1950 until the change in government in 1957.

These were the crucial years. And it may be said, without peril of contradiction, that Gen. McNaughton, in this matter, took on a lost cause and confronted his opposite numbers on the U.S. section of the international joint commission. He had no cards in his hand. The St. Laurent government was but lukewarm in supporting him. In reality, he fought alone.

90% Victory

The official announcement of the agreement in principle between the U.S. and Canadian governments on the Columbia, made by Hon. Davie Fulton, minister of justice, last Wednesday, showed that Gen. McNaughton has won 90 per cent of his objective.

There are points in the agreement that the general would never have agreed to. The Diefenbaker government failed, in some part, to achieve all that he would have insisted upon achieving had he been in charge of the negotiations. But in broad terms, the victory is complete.

What is the victory about? In simple terms, it concerns the sharing of the downstream benefits of the Columbia river power. The Columbia is a mountain river. There is a large runoff in the spring and low water the rest of the year.

There are some dozen huge power developments on the U.S. part of the river. Their output of power is governed by the average flow. The spring flood rushes over their dams: the low water is far below the crest of these dams. If the Columbia were dammed in Canada and the spring flood waters were backed up into huge storage lakes, the flow could be made steady the year around.

The gain in power—just in running existing U.S. plants at peak capacity all the time—would be about 2,600,000 horse power per year.

Little Was Done

The Columbia river problem was referred to the international joint commission in 1944 but, because no engineers were available little was done until 1950 when Gen. McNaughton succeeded the late Hon. J. A. Glen, as chairman of the Canadian section.

The Pacific states were clamoring for this 2,600,000 horse power. They faced a power shortage. The U.S., of course, was eager to pay for the storage facilities in Canada and powerful interests in Canada were favorable to this U.S. ambition.

Gen. McNaughton announced a completely revolutionary policy when he insisted that Canada should build and operate any storage dams in Canada and must receive free of charge, 50 per cent of all downstream benefits. One half the power obtained in the U.S. in this way, must be returned to Canada.

If Gen. McNaughton had exploded hydrogen bombs at Washington, D.C., and in the Pacific states, the shock would scarcely have been greater.

American governments and officials declared him to be wholly unrealistic.

They had no intention of returning a single horse-power. This would be their power, developed at their plants by water flowing naturally through their stretch of the river.

Never have there been more strenuous negotiations between the two countries. The then chairman of the U.S. section of the Commission gave up. Washington put in a strong man, Len Jordan, the governor of Idaho. But Mr. Jordan was no match for Gen. McNaughton, and gave way to a third man. The present incumbent is the fourth.

The history of water control in Canada is simple; in the U.S. it is complex.

We follow the British practice under which water in a river belongs to all who live along its banks. You receive it from upstream unimpaired and must hand it down unimpaired to those who live below.

Vested Right

The U.S. from the Mississippi west inherited the European continental law on rivers. You take what you wish and are confirmed thereby in your right to do so. You cannot complain of what the man upstream is doing and the man below you must take his chance. The exception is that a use of water once made becomes a vested right.

This law, by insistence of the U.S. and against Canada's publicly declared wishes, was incorporated into the U.S.-Canada international waterways treaty of 1909—the famous article II. Under this article diversion of hitherto unused water was sanctioned.

Gen. McNaughton, although his own government was plainly shocked, used this section against the U.S. with deadly effect. He put his engineers to work and was able to announce that, failing a satisfactory settlement with the U.S., Canada would divert the flood water of the Columbia out of this river and into the Thompson river.

There it would flow through the Fraser to the sea—all in Canada. This would mean that Canada would get all the power from the flood water and the U.S. none.

There was consternation in the United States. The Americans half-believed that Gen. McNaughton was only bluffing. But suppose Ottawa was really behind him?

Actually, the St. Laurent government never had the slightest intention of supporting the general and of carrying through such diversion. For one thing, the salmon industry would be all but destroyed. And there were other difficulties.

High Cards

But Gen. McNaughton never faltered. He had entered this game without a card in his hand. He had made some out of thin air—and high ones. Later on when the St. Laurent and the Diefenbaker governments opened official negotiations with Washington, the only cards they held were the cards which Gen. McNaughton, unassisted, had placed in their hands.

Furthermore, both government faced adversaries in the negotiations who had been softened up and made reasonable and pliable by McNaughton.

Looking back, the achievement is astonishing. Late in 1956, a powerful member of the Liberal government, no longer in public life, told the writer that unfortunately Gen. McNaughton would have to be retired. "If we don't stop him," said this minister, "we will wake up one morning to find he has declared war on the United States."

Single-handed, with no help except from a few senior officials and his own devoted staff, Gen. McNaughton made it possible for the Canadian government to establish the principle that Canada is entitled to receive one half of the downstream benefits of water storage in this country. For unexplained reasons, he was allowed to play no part in the final negotiations.

Gen. McNaughton is entitled to be acclaimed, without qualification, as a man who refused to admit defeat, refused to be turned aside by discouragement and lack of support, and who, in the end, achieved the seemingly impossible.

As Our Readers See It

Let's Have the Facts

We have been fortunate indeed, to have in this province, someone so highly regarded in her profession that she is considered to be an authority in the field of child welfare of not only national, but international stature.

When a person of the professional calibre of Miss Ruby McKay finds it necessary to resign her position as superintendent of child welfare, after sixteen years apparently because of conflict regarding policy, it behooves public-minded citizens to interest themselves.

Such a loss to the province leads to concern about the wisdom of the policy which was its cause. It is now incumbent upon the government to make a full disclosure of the controversial policies, so that the people of this province may be able to judge for themselves whether they are receiving the adequate services to which their taxes entitle them.

Three Rows of Tape

The sailor's blue jean collar has worn on the edge three stripes of white tape, and many explanations have been quoted since 1860.

"The Mariner's Mirror" of October 1948, page 308, quotes the wording of the Admiralty Circular of Jan. 30, 1857. The Commander-in-chief Devonport, forwarded a joint report by the Commanding Officers at that port in which the description of the suggested duck frock was: "Collar, and wristbands of blue jean, having a border of three rows of 3/16 of an inch white tape, 1/4 inch apart, with white metal button at the wrist."

The Devonport proposal was adopted almost verbatim the wording of the Admiralty Circular of January 30, 1857 being a "Duck or white drill frock, to be made with collar and wristbands of blue jean, each having a border of three rows of 3/16 of an inch white tape 1/4 inch apart with a white metal dead-eye button at each of the wrists."

The writer E. W. Bovill says, "It will be noticed that HMS Victory was amongst the ships that favored two rows, despite the well-known association with Nelson; I do not find in 1860 any indication that the choice of three rather than two rows, was motivated by any desire to commemorate the number of Nelson's naval victories in this way."

It will be found that the black silk handkerchief was commonly worn by sailors before Trafalgar, hence it was already in use in 1857.

Double Parking

I wonder what is going to be done regarding the double parking that continually goes on during the rush hours on our city streets.

On Friday evening, the first really wet night this season, there were three cars double parked, with the drivers seated in them, between Douglas and Blanshard, on Fort Street.

Driving in from Esquimalt during the rush hour we welcome the policeman who efficiently directs the traffic at Broad and Fort Streets, and the policeman who is on the alert at Douglas and Fort Streets, but the real headache is from Douglas to Quadra on Fort Street.

I have seen bus drivers having difficulty in getting out of their bus stop on account of cars double parked. Many a time we drivers are forced into the left lane, when it is safe to enter, to relieve the congestion.

It is bad enough in the rush hour to be held up for legitimate parking, or for a truck whose driver has a job of work to do, but these selfish drivers who cause so much frustration to their fellow drivers should be dealt with by the law.

A RUSH HOUR DRIVER.

OUR BABY SITTER JUST CALLED AND CANCELED OUT. MR. WILSON AND WE WERE WONDERING IF...HELLO? HELLO?...

Oct. 27, 1900 — Ottawa: Reports received here from all parts of Canada show the Liberals are steadily gaining strength and the Laurier government will be sustained.

Ring-Around-a-Betsy

WHEN my bright daughter was learning to drive she had right rear fender trouble. She could swing "Ole Betsy's" nose into the garage nicely. Then she'd have a sigh of relief, fiddle with the steering wheel and roll forward. Almost invariably the roll would end with a grating crunch as the right-rear fender kissed the door of the garage.

Stott

When she backed out, my daughter exercised extreme caution, checking in her several mirrors to see that she didn't scrape anything. Once "Ole Betsy's" nose was clear, she'd jack-rabbit across the road, swinging hard on the wheel, and come to rest with the right rear fender clobbering the south side of Gonzales Hill.

Next day the newspaper would carry the report: "A mild shock was recorded on the seismograph of the meteorological observatory, epicentre possibly in the Strait of Juan de Fuca."

By the time bright daughter had learned to drive, Gonzales Hill had been shifted several millimetres north. Several millimetres may not represent much in distance, but Gonzales Hill is quite a chunk of rock.

With a forbearance we did not feel, Pat and I would remain silent. Bright daughter would get out a small jar of grey paint she had bought for the purpose, her own small lettering brush, and touch up the scrapes on the right rear fender.

I thought my thoughts, and they weren't paternal in the generally accepted sense of the word. I was growing tired of putting lag screws into the garage door to hold it together.

Well, it so happens that in recent months I have been driving a small car. It hasn't the power of "Ole Betsy," who is a stout matron with amazing vitality. But the small car has one great advantage. You can get in and out of confined places with it.

It also happened that Pat let me drive the larger vintage job the other day. Your ego benefits from handling something of more power, though it may lack manoeuvrability. Humiliation was debasing when, as I swung into the garage I did what bright daughter had done so often. The right rear fender again has wrinkles that aren't entirely due to age. And I keep trying to reassure myself by saying since bright daughter did likewise, this probably indicates that I haven't such a low IQ after all.

The boys at the service station told Pat that if she wanted the fender to regain the unblemished smoothness of youth, she ought to take "Ole Betsy" to the body works, but they can do some kind of a job on it with rubber hammers. They said this with a smile of assumed wisdom that implied doubts over Pat's driving ability. She immediately set them right, placing the blame where it was due.

So we'll settle for a job with rubber hammers and breathe a prayer of thanks that we never did get around to buying a new car in recent years. If "Ole Betsy" had been born in the late '50s, that brief contact with the garage door would have entailed a repair project requiring a loan from the International Bank of Reconstruction.

You don't get a rehabilitation job on one of the "fifty" cars without a major capital expenditure.

Which makes me wonder if I shouldn't make my own personal representation to the Royal Commission on the Automotive Industry. I wouldn't limit my remarks solely to the point made by almost everyone I've talked to—that it's time the men who make cars cut out all the fancy-dan trimmings and got back to something simple. I'd go a step further.

Years ago, when my heart was younger and gayer, I once drove one of those little toy jobs that you can find in some amusement parks. They have trolleys up to a wire mesh above an enclosure and you can race around, going the opposite way to which you turn the wheel. The idea, it seemed at the time, was to bump into as many other drivers as you could.

Nobody was hurt and no machines damaged because each was encased in a resilient hoop which bounced you and the car with which you collided harmlessly apart.

Why haven't we got those hoops on standard models? Come on, Windsor, what's holding you back? Have you no consideration at all for the door and doorpost on the northwest corner of my garage?

DE GAULLE PLANS VOTE IN ALGERIA

PARIS (UPI) — President Charles de Gaulle has warned French army commanders in North Africa not to oppose his policy in Algeria, the newspaper Paris-Presse reported today.

He told them he plans to hold a national referendum vote, perhaps by Dec. 16, before setting up an autonomous Algerian government, the paper said.

'Quit Congo' Dag Urges Belgians

BRUSSELS (AP) — The Belgian government has received a second letter from UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld asking that Belgian technicians be withdrawn from the Congo, officials reported today.

Foreign Minister Pierre Wigny told the foreign affairs committee of the House of Representatives Wednesday that Hammarskjöld's demand would be rejected on the grounds that withdrawal of Belgian technicians would mean chaos in the Congo.

Gaitskell Backed by Labor 'Shadow Cabinet'

LONDON (Reuters) — Hugh Gaitskell, fighting to retain his leadership of the Labor party, today appeared to be gaining support behind the banner of Western collective security.

The 57-year-old party leader chalked up a tactical victory over opponent Harold Wilson Wednesday night as he went before a closed meeting of the 256 Labor members of Parliament whose choice of party leader will be announced Nov. 2.

He informed the Labor parliamentarians that his "shadow cabinet" an hour earlier unanimously reaffirmed his official defence policy pledging loyalty to NATO backed by an American nuclear deterrent.

Wilson, the party's economic expert in the party group that would form the government if Labor replaced the Conservatives in office, apparently was included in the unanimous verdict.

REPLANTING TIME

By HILDA BEASTALL

Lily-of-the-Valley Need Care

Lily-of-the-valley (Convallaria majalis) are as much a favorite in gardens as the sweet scented violets, yet require considerable attention to keep them producing good flowers.

Hilda

When lily-of-the-valley (as we'll call it for short) becomes crowded, the flower spikes in spring become fewer and smaller. Digging and replanting is the only remedy for this condition.

Now that the leaves are yellow is the best time to do this job. With them still attached damaging the crowns as digging proceeds.

It's an untidy job. L-o-v puts out underground runners in all directions, so that one soon has a mass of tangled roots and crowns resembling nothing except a batch of starfish left high and dry.

If a large planting is involved, half of it may be dug and replanted in two successive years, so that flowering will not be completely absent.

When the plants are removed from the bed, dig the soil thoroughly, and decide if it needs replenishing with some screened compost. Peat moss, bonemeal and some coarse sand can all be added with beneficial results.

With the bed completely ready, take the roots to a convenient place and begin to sort out the largest crowns. With sharp secateurs, cut the connecting runners, and put aside the pieces which seem too small to be of use. They can be tucked into the bed if space permits.

In the main planting, the crowns should be three inches apart, which gives space for about three years' growth before digging will again be necessary.

If flowering has not been satisfactory even though the plants were not crowded, try a shadier site, for lily-of-the-valley will enjoy a north border or the edge of a shrub border shaded by high trees.

Unusual Charge Against Landlord

VANCOUVER (CP) — Helen Ramsden was remanded Wednesday until November 2 when she appeared in court on charges under the lodging house by-law that she failed to satisfy herself once in every 24 hours that every lodger is alive and able to call for medical help if required.

Police reports say that on September 1, a woman reported the death of a lodger. Police found the body of a white man, age unknown, face down in an attic room. The body was in an advanced state of decomposition.

The first lightship was built in England in 1732, and the first U.S. lightship took its station in Chesapeake Bay in 1820.

McNaughton's 'Difficult' Retirement

18th of a Series
On Nov. 30, 1943, Mackenzie King told his colleagues that "he had many problems to contend with of which none of them knew and of which I could speak to none." Undoubtedly what was in his mind was the impending retirement of General McNaughton as commander of the Canadian Army.

Pickersgill

This retirement had just been agreed to after very difficult exchanges by cable back and forth across the Atlantic with Ralston and McNaughton. As early as 1942 when McNaughton had been home in Canada on leave, Mackenzie King had recorded his concern as to whether McNaughton would have the health and strength to lead the Army in the field.

'Probability' Seen

But the definite probability of McNaughton's retirement first arose just after the Canadian troops landed in Sicily. At that time General Stuart, the Chief of the General Staff, was in England and he sent Brigadier R. B. Gibson home to report.

In his account of this meeting, Mackenzie King noted that Gibson had indicated that McNaughton naturally preferred to keep the Army intact "for the final blow" but was agreeable to a second division going to the Mediterranean.

Mackenzie King also noted that Ralston would like to see a Canadian Corps established in Sicily under the command of General Crerar and that he wanted to go to England at once to join General Stuart and settle the question.

Ralston reported on Aug. 10 to Mackenzie King that Brooke had expressed surprise at the judgment McNaughton had shown in military exercises in Britain earlier in the year which were called by the code name "Spartan."

Strain Took Toll

The possibility of McNaughton's retirement as commander of the Canadian Army became an active possibility from this time on. Mackenzie King saw Stuart in Quebec on August 14 and Stuart confirmed what Ralston had told him and indicated that McNaughton had himself spoken of the possibility of resigning.

Both Ralston and Stuart reported that McNaughton seemed much older and suffering a good deal from strain.

Stuart also indicated that Brooke and General Paget, who was Commander in Chief of the Home Forces in Britain, no longer felt confidence in McNaughton's capacity to command troops in actual combat.

Mackenzie King had a talk with Ralston and Stuart together at Quebec on August 31 about the question of another division going to Sicily.

"I believe the Canadian people would rather have our men in action in Italy than remain inactive in Britain throughout the winter."

Exoerience Needed

"Instead of having all our five divisions kept in England and used for the final attack on Germany, without any of them having had battle experience in advance, there has since come about the sending of one division and brigade to Italy, and—its participation there along with the British troops and Americans and now the sending of a second division and a motorized division, and the establishment of a Canadian army corps in Italy."

"There will remain a Canadian army corps in Britain. Then, when the main assault comes, instead of our men bearing the brunt of this assault, it will be divided between the British, Americans and ourselves."

"This, I think, will mean a considerable saving of life of our own troops and it will also have the advantage of Canada sharing in such successes as there may be in the south as well as in the north."

Personal Problem

"The serious personal part of this—and it is a political problem as well—is that it is almost certain to involve, if not the retirement of McNaughton, at all events his position as commander being more nominal than real. It certainly rules out altogether the possibility of his commanding the Canadian forces in the final engagement in Europe."

"General Stuart was very frank in the way he spoke to the War Committee about the situation as it really is. He knew that the (United Kingdom) chiefs of staff would not entrust him (McNaughton) with the commands of the men in Europe. He felt that this should be made known to McNaughton and was prepared himself to go over and discuss the situation with him at first hand."

Shortly afterwards Ralston and Stuart went to England to deal with the situation on the spot. The first word of the results of Ralston's visit with Mackenzie King received was a "message" from McNaughton on Nov. 10 in which McNaughton submitted his resignation and indicated he could not continue to command the army under any government of which Ralston was a member.

The reason for his taking this position was that he blamed Ralston and not the British chiefs of staff for first suggesting that he was no longer able to command troops in actual combat.

On Sunday, Nov. 14, Mackenzie King received messages from both Ralston and McNaughton and learned that "there had been a meeting between McNaughton, Brooke, Paget, Stuart and Ralston at which Brooke and Paget had made clear the criticism, etc., had originated with them, and McNaughton had fully accepted their word, had expressed his regret to Ralston, Ralston had accepted the amendment, that McNaughton wished me to accept his resignation, but would stay on in command of the army till his successor was appointed."

After a good many communications back and forth to Ottawa it was decided to appoint Stuart as temporary Commander of the Canadian Army and to announce McNaughton's retirement on December 27.

On February 3, Mackenzie King noted that in the House of Commons "shortly after 3, Ralston leaned over and told me that McNaughton had arrived at the Seigniory Club."

Belligerent Talk

"While in Montreal, he had been met by the press and had given an interview which was belligerent and stated he was perfectly fit and called on those who had talked about his health to explain the situation. Later I saw the press accounts which I think are most unfortunate. Ralston himself had thought he, McNaughton, would say this, but I did not believe he would. I did my best to keep Ralston quiet."

Both Mackenzie King and Ralston feared that after McNaughton's press interview had appeared, his retirement would become a partisan political issue.

The Conservatives did try to exploit it at once. Mackenzie King noted in his diary for February 3: "At a meeting last night, Drew said that McNaughton had had a dirty deal so there seems little doubt that the Tories will seek to make great difficulty between us and him."

Tories Countered

"The whole business is most unpleasant and trying, but I feel quite calm in my own mind as I know I have helped to save a much worse situation that might have worked great injury to our war effort. Knowing what the correspondence reveals... what I think is most serious is that it was upon representation of the British War Office that he was really relieved of his command."

"That will put the Tories in a difficult position. It will make stronger the position I have taken about this country having its own policy on defence."

The next day (Feb. 5) Mackenzie King read "anew the correspondence which took place with McNaughton, Ralston, etc., last November and December... There is no doubt in my mind that what should now be done is for McNaughton himself to write to me, deploring that the question of his health has led to discussion in Parliament which may provoke controversy."

Issue Restricted

"Otherwise it is certain that the correspondence will have to be disclosed and, if it is, it will make perfectly clear that those in charge of operations felt that McNaughton was not able to command that he was given definitely no to understand and, in the end, he will suffer more on that account."

Mackenzie King had a long talk with Ralston about tactics in Parliament. He was very insistent that Ralston should "deal with McNaughton's resignation on the basis of medical certificates. He admitted that there had been controversies before between them but that these had been adjusted, and that there was nothing to be gained by going into what had happened prior to the resignation. That all of that could be settled later on when it was over and would not alter the existing situation."

The next morning (Feb. 15) Mackenzie King "met Graydon, Grote Stirling, Coldwell and Blackmore, along with Ralston, Power, Macdonald and Robertson. Ralston was patches, and had a short discussion."

Credit Taken

"I think all who came were impressed with the wisdom of having a public disclosure

Victoria Daily Times 7
THURS., OCT. 27, 1960

of what the dispatches revealed, and the effect this would have upon the morale of the troops, and on the United Nations effort, comfort to the enemy, etc."

That evening Mackenzie King felt "immensely relieved about the McNaughton matter, that whatever may blaze up from now on, will not create the appalling situation that would have happened had there been a real break in November or December, or if Ralston had taken the course he proposed after the outburst by McNaughton at the Seigniory Club."

"I can take credit to myself for having saved these situations."

And so ended the first act of the Mackenzie King-Ralston-McNaughton drama.

While Mackenzie King threw himself vigorously enough into the consideration of problems related to the war when they arose, it is fair to say that, apart from the flurry occasioned by McNaughton's return to Canada, his main preoccupation in these early months of 1944 continued to be with what would happen after the war.

Danger to Liberals

On Feb. 11, he spoke at a dinner given by the National Liberal Federation where he "took advantage of the occasion to speak on organization, partly in the country and partly in parliament, and need for keeping in touch with the working classes and farmers."

"Danger of the liberal party being eliminated altogether in Canada if we do not organize and fight for our principles. Pointed out how CCF were stealing our ground."

He continued to deplore the extent to which the Liberal party appeared to be losing the support of organized labor to the CCF and sought to recover some of the lost ground by consultation with the labor congresses in the final stages of the preparation of the Labor Relations Code which the federal government had been working out with the provincial governments since November, 1943.

Labor Satisfied

The code was finally settled and announced on Feb. 17 and Mackenzie King noted that night that "Bengough and Mosher both commented very favorably on the code in what came over the radio."

One of Mackenzie King's greatest worries was about the growth of the influence of the United States in Canada, and the possible domination of postwar Canada by the Americans.

This fear was reflected in a discussion on Feb. 17 at the war committee on "The Canol Project," which had reference to the oil pipeline from Norman Wells, N.W.T. The pipeline had been constructed as a joint enterprise for military purposes, but Mackenzie King did not want the Americans to control the oil wells.

"He held strongly with one or two others to the view that we ought to get the Americans out of the further development there, and keep complete control in our hands. "As discussion went on and it became apparent that that part of Canada may possess oil areas as vast as those countries like Romania and California."

"There is going to be a desire on the part of all nations for a sharing of resources that are needed to supply such wants as those of gasoline and the like on which the commercial world of the future would depend."

"Also with Canada holding a position geographically advantageous in air routes as well as in resources there will be a demand on this country to make very great concessions to other nations."

"With the United States so powerful and her investments becoming greater in Canada we will have a great difficulty to hold our own against pressure from the United States."

"Then, with Russia a near neighbor, and what Japan and China may come to demand as well, and with Britain probably looking to the Dominions primarily and seeking to hold exclusively as her own their resources, what may be the outcome of it all is a prospect that is hard for me to contemplate."

Wealth a Danger

"With the tiny population we have, relative to what we possess in the way of resources, this country (might) become a scene of battle and pass into other hands. I know of nothing which has grown out of the war which seems to me to require more careful consideration than all this side of things."

Basis Drawn For W. Indies Government

PORT OF SPAIN (Reuters)—An inter-governmental committee which has been meeting in this Trinidad city, has agreed on a basic framework of a constitution for a loosely-knit independent West Indies nation.

A federal government press statement this week said that the political and constitutional committee of the inter-governmental conference also had agreed on a number of other points of difference which seemed irreconcilable a year ago.

The matters on which the committee agreed included the financing of the federal government by limited independent tax powers in place of the existing "mandatory" levy, though income tax and industrial development would remain for the time being matters for the governments of the units making up the federation.

The members are Antigua, Barbados, Dominica, Grenada, Jamaica, Montserrat, St. Kitts, Nevis-Anguilla, St. Lucia, St. Vincent, Trinidad and Tobago.

The committee agreed that each unit should have full self-government within an independent federation, the statement said.

The timing of independence was referred to the inter-governmental conference, which will reconvene shortly.

"I felt clear in my own mind it was necessary to have private enterprise make a beginning."

"Equally clear that there should be no parting over any length of time with resources; also that the areas should be kept restricted and that obligations should be placed on any private corporation to see that development was made in a way that would give Canada benefits from them, e.g., construction of pipelines."

National Flag

Mackenzie King felt the same concern to keep control of civil aviation, both international and domestic, in public hands, in order to protect the national interest and identity of Canada.

Mackenzie King began again to think about settling the question of a national anthem and a flag.

In his diary for March 20, he wrote: "Before waking, was dreaming of what to do about a national anthem for Canada. "There came to be very strongly the idea that God Save the King should be made the anthem of the British Commonwealth of Nations, and that O Canada should be the national anthem for Canada."

"It (God Save the King) could be sung in any part of the Commonwealth excepting Ireland. If they did not like it, they could go without. It would disclose the association of the different parts of the Empire and would leave each individual part free to have its distinct anthem..."

"I then thought of the Union Jack. Felt that it could be proclaimed the national flag of the United Kingdom; that the Dominions could have a Union Jack in the corner, to show historical evolution and present association with the United Kingdom, though with each having its own distinct flag as well."

"I believe those ideas would please the King and meet with universal acceptance."

"Similarly, the Union Jack could be seen either completely by itself or in the corner of the national flag in any part of the Commonwealth."

Ensign Suggested

At the caucus on March 28, Mackenzie King suggested a way to meet the anthem and flag questions was to have God Save the King as the anthem of the nations of the British Commonwealth, and allow each country to have its own national anthem. O Canada for Canada.

Regarding a flag, have the Union Jack a part of each flag that belonged to the British Commonwealth of Nations thereby disclosing a common historical association with Britain...

"Advised that Canada take the Canadian Ensign and accept it at once as her national flag. Not wait to design a special flag. Later a committee could be appointed to consider new designs. As I dictate, I think more and more of the wisdom of having a resolution of parliament to adopt these two things before the present session is over. I may take up this matter at the meeting of Prime Ministers."

He did neither.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia, and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address four questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Mary Jean Fishel, aged 12, of Clarksville, Tenn., for her question:

What is a Devilfish?
This name is sometimes given to the giant octopus of the deep ocean. But more often, the big manta ray of tropical waters is called the devilfish. Strange to say, neither the octopus nor the ray is very devilish in character and neither of them is a true fish. The big octopus is the giant of the mollusk clan. The ray has gristle instead of bones and his scales and gills are unlike those of a true fish. He is a chondrichthyan or gristle-fish, which makes him cousin to the sharks and the skates.

Mr. Manta Ray Devilfish is shaped like a monster bat. His big triangular wings may measure 25 feet from tip to tip. His fleshy body with its long whip tail may measure 17 feet or more. See close-up, the ray is far from handsome. His mouth is a yard wide. On either side of this big mouth there is a fleshy arm three to four feet long. These arms are really special fins called cephalic fins or head fins. Mr. Ray uses them to scoop food into his mouth. Sometimes the cephalic fins are held out from the body and curved. They look like a pair of horns, and this is most probably why the manta ray got the name devilfish. Though he is no beauty, the ray is certainly graceful in the water. The great fleshy wings, tapering towards the ends, are held out in the water. They gently flap or wave up and down like the wings of a giant bird.

The big ray may weigh one and one-half tons, and he is always in fighting trim. When harpooned with one, two or even three spears he is far from defeated. He still can drag the fishermen and their small boats for many miles.

Not Likely to Attack

When scared, he can lift his whole body out of the water, landing with a loud thud and a big flat splash.

So far as we know, the manta ray does not attack unless he is provoked. The most damage he does is to capsize a boatload of fishermen. Certainly he is not interested in eating the fishermen. The roof of his great mouth is lined with curtains of whalebone which he uses to filter his food from the seawater. His favorite food is the small crustaceans found in floating plankton. He crushes them with the rather weak teeth along his lower jaw.

The manta ray is a native of warm and tropical seas. He is found in the southern coastal waters around the United States and is quite common in the warm, brilliant blue Gulf of Mexico. Mrs. Ray gives birth to live babies and Junior is a whopping 28 to 30 pounds at birth.

Court Case Shows Saanich Bylaw Needs More Bark

Saanich will take steps to revise a municipal bylaw dealing with barking dogs. Magistrate William Ostler recently dismissed a charge against David Wright, 5367 Rushton, of keeping or harboring a dog which disturbed the peace by barking at night. The magistrate pointed out a breach of the peace was a matter of criminal law, not municipal, and that the bylaw went beyond powers designated the municipality.

"We will certainly have to amend the bylaw after consulting the municipal solicitor," said Reeve George Chatterton.

MONEY WASTED

Many Pills Worthless, Say Doctors

VANCOUVER (CP)—Most of the ingredients contained in many multi-vitamin pills and diet supplements now on the market are of no value whatever for routine use by the vast majority of adults or children who are eating a well-balanced diet, the B.C. Medical Association said Wednesday.

The comment was contained in a statement issued by Dr. Gordon Ferguson, the association's executive director.

STUDIED U.S. REPORTS

He said the association's committee on nutrition has studied reports of sales campaigns in the United States for various multi-vitamin and multi-mineral preparations. "Most vitamin-mineral preparations prescribed by physicians and bought at pharmacies cost in the vicinity of $3 for a month's supply," the statement said.

"Certainly there is no justification for anyone embarking on a plan of purchasing vitamin-mineral supplements to the extent of up to $20 monthly, without referring to their own physician."

DO LITTLE GOOD

"The committee on nutrition is not concerned with the sales methods of any company promoting so-called aids to health, except inasmuch as those methods may often convince people to spend large sums of money on diet supplements which will do them little if any good."

"Provided this latter fact is understood, people have a right to buy what they want, even if it is obvious that they are wasting their money."

John A. Sweezey, no fixed address, was fined $250 and his driver's licence was suspended when he pleaded guilty in city police court Wednesday to a charge of impaired driving.

FLEMING STANDS FIRM

cent of all provincial government revenues are provided by Ottawa through tax-rental payments, equalization payments, shared-cost programs and the special grants to the Atlantic provinces.

He said this emphasizes the substantial departure from the principle of tax responsibility which has occurred in federal-provincial relations.

Mr. Fleming gave this breakdown of the share of provincial government revenues in each province which are covered by federal payments:

Newfoundland 68.9 per cent; Prince Edward Island 61, Nova Scotia 55.8, New Brunswick 55.5, Quebec 17.4, Ontario 26.7, Manitoba 49.2, Saskatchewan 38.6, Alberta 30.5, British Columbia 35.8.

Quebec collects its own personal and corporation income taxes and succession duty, while Ontario collects corporation and succession duty levies.

DENIES DEPARTURE

Mr. Fleming rejected the accusations of some premiers that the federal proposals to fix equalization payments at a total of $220,000,000 a year for five years mean a departure from the principle of equalization.

He said the offer guarantees a larger amount in such payments than ever before and guarantees it for five years.

The finance minister repeated Mr. Diefenbaker's statement that the federal government would like to see the provinces work out a formula for dividing the $220,000,000. Failing agreement, he said, the federal government is prepared to decide how it will be split up.

Mr. Fleming told the provinces the federal government will collect provincial taxes, if they wish, at cost.

He said it was part of the federal proposal to return part of the fields of personal and corporation taxes and succession duties that a plan should be working to avoid a multiplicity of tax forms.

The federal government was willing to collect taxes levied by the provinces at cost, rather than free or at a flat fee.

Among the conditions would be that the provinces agree with the federal government on a standard definition of what money is taxable and that the tax forms clearly show what amounts are being paid to the federal and provincial treasuries.

'Frostbiters' Getting Ready For Sail Season

Foul weather sailors of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club will open the "Frostbite" sailing season Saturday, with a sail-past at the Cadboro Bay anchorage at 2:30 p.m.

Following the sail-past, tune-up races will be held. These races do not count toward the winning point total.

Actual series races get under way Nov. 6, with the first Sunday series; the Saturday series starts Nov. 12.

There are four sets of races in each of the series, last of which will be held on Jan. 15. Frostbite classes this year will include Davidsons, Penguins and Snipes, as before, but owners of other classes such as Stars, Lightnings, Catamarans or Sabots are invited to take part.

Captain of the Frostbite fleet is W. G. McIntosh.

Ernest Lapointe, former federal minister of justice, was a Liberal member of the House of Commons for 37 years until his death in 1941.

Head-On Crash Injures Nine Wrecks 2 Cars

LAKE COWICHAN — Two women were sent to hospital and seven other persons shaken up in a grinding head-on collision on Cowichan Lake Road Wednesday night.

In hospital at Duncan are Mrs. Doreen Gunderson, Saltair, who suffered chest injuries, and Mrs. James Lewis, Lake Cowichan, with head injuries. Both were reported in satisfactory condition today.

Mrs. Gunderson was passenger in a west-bound car driven by Lawrence E. La Fleur, Youbou, which smashed head-on into a car driven by James U. Lewis, Lake Cowichan. Both drivers and five youngsters in the Lewis car were shaken up and suffered minor cuts and bruises, but did not require attention.

La Fleur, charged this morning in Lake Cowichan police court with impaired driving, pleaded not guilty and was remanded to Nov. 4.

The collision occurred at 7:15 p.m. on a series of curves about six miles east of here. Both cars were badly damaged and are considered "write-offs."

The injured were taken to hospital in Duncan by the Lake-Cowichan Kinsmen ambulance.

CAMPBELL RIVER — Accidental death by drowning was verdict of a coroner's jury investigating the death of two fishermen following sinking of the Vancouver seiner Sea Pride II Tuesday morning.

Victims were William Sigmond, 37, of Vancouver, skipper of the vessel, and Fred Phillips, 34, of Whalley. Phillips died on a life raft which supported the crew of four after the sinking, and Sigmond died after being taken aboard the freighter Alaska Prince. Water was found in the lungs of both men.

Survivors were Gary Sigmond, 21, nephew of the skipper, and mate George Wiseman. They said the Sea Pride II heeled in a gale, then was struck by a huge wave. The crew launched the raft and the vessel sank almost immediately, they said.

GANGES — Teachers of Gulf Islands School District 64, who asked for an average salary increase of 4.93 per cent during 1960-61 contract negotiations, were offered instead what amounted to a pay cut.

Trustees offered the 1959 salary scale, and not the raise granted by an arbitration board. It would amount to a pay reduction of about seven per cent.

NANAIMO — Hungarian Benevolent Society, Salvation Army, and Red Cross are lending assistance to Mrs. Ida Butta, whose home was gutted by fire Tuesday.

Firemen said it was started when one of her three children, aged six, four, and three years, set fire to the chestfield while playing with matches. Damage was estimated at $2,500.

Mrs. Butta, a Hungarian refugee, is a recipient of social assistance.

PORT ALBERNI — Chamber of Commerce here will ask Recreation Minister Earle Westwood to have the Della Falls trail improved as part of the government winter works program.

It was reported the trail, between the head of Great Central Lake and the falls in Strathcona Park, is overgrown and that bridges have been washed away.

Cash Box Emptied In Nick of Time

DUNCAN — Thieves obtained little for their efforts when they forced the cash box on a cigaret vending machine in the Canadian Legion overnight Tuesday.

Entrance was gained by smashing a window at the rear of the building. Secretary Bob Bell said the cash box had been emptied the day before and doubted if much was taken.

It was the second break-in at the Legion in three months.

Local Bidder Wins Contract For Yule Trees

(FROM DUNCAN BUREAU) NORTH COWICHAN — A newcomer to the field of Christmas tree harvesting won out over one of the biggest firms in the business when tenders for cutting rights on municipal land were opened by North Cowichan council, Wednesday.

Bid of R. Holst-Larsen, Cowichan Lake Road, who offered 15 cents a tree and agreed to accept all restrictions proposed by the municipality, was accepted.

LONG LEASE ASKED
Rejected was the offer of Kirk and Co. with head offices in Tacoma, which offered 40 cents a bale, or from seven to 10 cents per tree, but requested a 10-year lease. A letter from the firm said it ships 300 carloads a year from Canada and is in a position to utilize the municipal land to its fullest extent.

Reeve D. C. Morton said that five years was the lease term discussed by representatives when they met with council and the municipal forester two weeks ago, and no objections were raised at that time.

"I feel a five-year lease is sufficient, especially as we are feeling our way on this thing," he said.

"I think we are obliged to accept the highest offer," the reeve said.

Ottawa Rejects Bid for Wharf

SIDNEY — Federal government has rejected a proposal by Sidney local of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union that a fishermen's wharf be built here.

Gordon Reid, secretary, said the union was told in a letter from Ottawa that the government feels the number of fishermen operating out of Sidney would not warrant the expense of a wharf.

Mr. Reid said the union finds no provision here for fishermen, and that many Sidney men are operating out of other communities where facilities are overcrowded.

Jet-Rescue

COMOX — "Rescue and Fire-Fighting Techniques for Jet Aircraft" was the topic for recent lectures given Comox Valley firemen.

Local firemen were shown how to safely remove personnel from the ejection seats of crashed jet aircraft and were instructed in the latest aircraft fire-fighting techniques.

Close proximity of RCAF station Comox to the surrounding communities and the probability of local fire departments participating in off-helicopter crashes, plus the firemen's personal safety in these instances, are the reasons for providing this information.

WHEDDLE LAKE REVIVED

Killed-Off Fish Stage Comeback

CHEMAINUS — Trout fishing at Wheddle's Lake, just a hop, skip and jump west of this community, has never been better than it was this fall, and Mother Nature is credited with a big assist in this happy turn of events.

Two years ago, the pretty 13-acre lake was treated with chemical, to kill off its over-abundant fish population, as part of the game department's program of rehabilitating island lakes and improving sport fishing.

It turned out to be one of the least costly phases of the department's ambitious program.

FISH TOO SMALL

Six-tenths of a gallon of toxaphene was dumped in the lake Oct. 2, 1958. Purpose was to kill off all native cutthroat in the lake which anglers had long since quit fishing because fish were too small. Plan was to restock it with rainbow trout.

Normally it takes anywhere from 12 to 24 months before results of a lake treatment program can be gauged. However, in the case of Wheddle's Lake, the kill was only partial, and the following spring fish were noted rising again.

Biologist Dave Hurn, who had supervised the treating of the lake, found it to be poison-free and, strangely enough, full of fish. Investigation showed the lake had been restocked naturally with native cutthroats from a creek which empties into it.

POPULATION CUT

The chemical treatment, however, proved to be a partial success because while a complete kill was not achieved, the fish population was reduced to a point where feed could support bigger fish.

Chemainus Rod and Gun Club, realizing the potential of the lake, just two miles from here, have built several floats around the edge for the benefit of anglers, particularly youngsters. There also is good access for those wishing to launch small boats.

COWICHAN COUNCIL NOTES

$5,000 Grant to Hospital

(From Duncan Bureau)

NORTH COWICHAN — Municipal council Wednesday approved a grant of $5,000 to Chemainus Hospital building fund.

Addition of a new pediatric ward and several alterations, to cost a total of $25,000, are planned for the hospital. Two-thirds of the project cost will be borne by the provincial and federal governments, and the remainder by the community.

The municipal grant will be taken out of the contingencies fund.

Installation of a boat launching ramp at the foot of Maple Street in Chemainus, adjacent to Kinsmen Park was approved in principle by the council.

The project was proposed by Chemainus Chamber of Commerce, which stated the beach area already is widely used for this purpose, with the approval of the Kinsmen Club. The project will be subject to council's approval on the length and width of the ramp, and actual location.

Jaycees, Hawkins, Bury the Hatchet

A truce has at last been declared in the battle between Jaycees and publicity commissioner William Hawkins over Victoria's publicity slogan.

Mr. Hawkins assured Jaycees Wednesday the old slogan of, "Follow the Birds to Victoria" will remain along with his new "Treasure Island" theme.

Jaycee supporters of the old slogan were president Al Wilson, past president Peter Forward and Ted Bird, director of Jaycees' tourist promotion and social welfare committee.

Jaycees decided not to take any action on the proposed city sign bylaw.

They passed a resolution to that effect after sign operator Wilfrid Fraser told them that the fourth draft of the bylaw is in the process of being amended and the reversed version is likely to meet with approval from all sides.

The bylaw was scheduled to come before city council this afternoon.

JOSE LEMUS

SAN SALVADOR JUNTA WIPES OUT DECREES

SAN SALVADOR (AP)—The new ruling junta erased several decrees of deposed president Jose Maria Lemus and dissolved the El Salvador Congress today. The juntas avowed aim is to restore justice in this tiny central American nation.

A state of siege imposed after student rioting last month against Lemus' strongarm administration was lifted by the six-man military-civilian group which ousted him in a bloodless coup Wednesday.

Civil liberties had been sharply restricted. The junta revoked two other decrees of Lemus, forbidding public meetings and curtailing the authority of the national university's faculty.

Lemus had vanished. There were reports the 49-year-old soldier-politician was seeking refuge in Guatemala or the United States.

The little coffee-growing country had been seething for months with demands for social and economic change. The great majority of the 2,500,000 people are impoverished peasants dominated by a small number of wealthy, plantation-owning families. The army traditionally controls politics.

AFTER STORMY DEBATE

Labor Backs CCF

VANCOUVER (CP)—The B.C. Federation of Labor, after a stormy session at its annual convention, Wednesday endorsed support for the CCF in a federal election.

Only 12 of more than 300 delegates opposed the action in a standing vote following a 3½-hour debate.

The federation voted to co-operate closely with the CCF in nominating candidates and co-ordinating campaign activities.

Federation officials said they believe a federal election will be called next spring or summer and want to field CCF-Labor candidates before the founding convention of the New Party next July.

Opponents of the action charged that those who advocated it were over-riding minority interests.

But Joe Morris, IWA director, charged that unionists who would deny the "political direction" of workers were sabotaging the workers' movement.

He said unions have a responsibility to lead their members politically as well as economically.

"If we don't do the job on the political front that we have done economically, all the things that we have done in the past 30 years will be as nothing to our people," he said.

Delegates also urged that the B.C. government: make it an offence for employers to hire strike breakers; Make available more facilities for the education of retarded children; Enact fair employment and fair accommodation legislation.

SIDELINE SLANTS

BY

Doug Peden

The crowds may be smaller and the pay cheques may be slimmer, but the real pros always come up with the same big effort.

NICK MICKOSKI

When some veterans are shuffled from the big time to a minor league, they merely put in time for their last season or two, counting on their reputations to keep them on the payroll. The good ones, the pros with pride in their profession, play it for keeps all the way, whether in New York, Spokane or Keokuk.

For an example of the latter, we give you Harry Lumley and Nick Mickoski, now toiling for Winnipeg Warriors after cutting capers through a bunch of National Hockey League campaigns.

Lumley, 15 seasons under the big top and former winner of the Vezina Trophy as the NHL's top netminder, and Mickoski, veteran of 703 NHL games, are still giving it the old college try. And they are two of the big reasons why the Warriors may be tough to keep out of a berth in the Western Hockey League playoffs.

And Mickoski, 33, who set up two goals as the Warriors tripped Victoria Cougars 5-3 at Memorial Arena Wednesday night, isn't a guy to shrug off responsibility.

"I've been disappointed at the way I've been playing," said Nick. "I haven't been skating like I should, but when I step on the ice the old enthusiasm is still there. I still want to win as much as ever."

Mickoski shouldered the blame for Tuesday's overtime loss at Vancouver. "I made a mistake by trying to kick the puck out of our zone in the final minute," he said. "I missed and one of our defencemen kept it in. Then, bang, they got the tying goal with only 29 seconds left. I played it wrong and it cost us the game."

"Maybe it's the change in climate," he said, "but I haven't been playing well on the coast. But tonight I was moving better and felt I was doing my share."

"One of the differences between the NHL and this league," he said, "is positional play. Often I get checked by two men when one could do the job. It's been confusing, but I'm getting used to it now and starting to look for the man who must be open."

"We're just starting to play as a team," Nick added, "We'll be a better club when we come back again."

LUCK PATTERNS: It didn't even get passing mention in hockey stories, but Johnny Wilson's remarkable "iron man" streak was snapped when Toronto shuffled the 31-year-old winger off to the minors and Johnny didn't open the National Hockey League season with the Leafs.

Wilson played 580 consecutive NHL games, starting with the last 20 games of the 1951-52 season. The former mark was 508, set by New York's Murray Murdoch.

Seattle's Bill Davidson, a former Cougar, holds the Western Hockey League endurance mark of 553 games, plus 32 playoff tussles. Another ex-Cougar, Colin Kilburn, is the most likely candidate to pass Davidson's record. Colin has logged more than 500 successive league games.

Speaking of records, Gordie Howe, the top point-getter in NHL history, should soon become the first big leaguer to collect more than 1,000 points. The big wheel of Detroit Red Wings has a career total of 987 points.

Hal Laycoe's Portland Buckaroos expect to set a new WHL attendance record when they open their home season at the gleaming new Portland Memorial Coliseum on Nov. 15. The Bucks have sold about 700 season tickets and are pointing for a capacity crowd when they kick the hockey lid off their new "glass palace," which has a seating capacity of 10,300. The WHL mark for a league game was set at Winnipeg in 1955, when 9,536 fans watched the Warriors battle Calgary Stampeders.

MIXED UP KID: Oregon State University has a sophomore grinner—Terry Baker—who passes left-handed, but when he gets on the baseball mound in the spring, he turns his torso from the right side. . . more confusing, Baker arrived at Corvallis on a basketball scholarship.

New Club Seeks Basket Tossers

Players are wanted for a proposed new entry into the Senior "B" Men's Basketball League.

The team, under coach Pat Horgan, hopes to join the "B" group this season with an eye to attaining "A" ranks in the future.

Horgan said anyone wanting to join should attend a practice tonight at 7 in the Mount View High School gym. This will be the final workout before Horgan must tell the Victoria Basketball Commission whether he can field a team.

LAST YEAR WITH LIONS?

Duncan's No 'Career Athlete'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Quarterback Randy Duncan, former all-American from Iowa University now completing his second year with British Columbia Lions, says he doesn't expect to return to the B.C. football club next year.

He indicated he will shelve his professional football career to pursue law. Unless he has a change of heart before next summer, Duncan will play his last game here Saturday night when Lions and the Saskatchewan Roughriders close out the Western Interprovincial Football Union season.

"I'm working towards my law degree and it's becoming increasingly hard to play football in Canada and study in the States," said Duncan.

"I took my pre-law at Iowa and I have to go back to Drake University to finish off the final three years for my degree," Duncan added that he has never considered himself a career athlete.

RANDY DUNCAN

RANDY WANTS TO BE A LAWYER

"Football was a means to an end. If I do get out of it completely, I'll certainly miss the game. But, maybe after this season, I shouldn't miss it."

He meant that 1960 has been a disappointing season. He was Lions' first-string quarterback for five games, then was supplanted by Jim Walden, a rookie from Wyoming who handled the club in the next 10.

In 1959 Duncan quarterbacked every game as the Lions had their most successful season, winning nine games and getting the team into the league playoffs for the first time.

Duncan said he had hoped to enroll at the University of B.C. to complete law studies, but found he'd be repeating courses he'd already taken.

"Much as I love football, I don't think it would be practical to make concessions at the expense of my education," he said.

William Is Willing To Supply Nags

Cougar Switch Gives Warriors Room to Gallop

Warriors 5, Cougars 3
By DOUG PEDEN

The next time Victoria Cougars decide to change horses in mid-stream while arguing with Winnipeg Warriors, Bill Robinson will gladly supply the nags.

Robinson, the dead-serious rookie coach of the Warriors, was just about ready to believe the sun would never shine again on the Pacific Coast—until the Cats decided to try a difficult method of transportation.

Bill got his Warriors away to a good start in the current Western Hockey League race with three victories in their first four starts, which was a sunny start for a guy taking his first fling at piloting a pro club.

Then came a swing through the coast portion of the eight-team circuit and Bill's boys promptly hit the skids. They dropped five straight games and Robinson, who did a playing stint with Seattle about 12 years ago, was almost convinced the gloom was going to last until they got back east of the Rockies.

The big heartbreaker came at Vancouver Tuesday night. The Warriors grabbed the lead with less than a minute remaining in regulation time, but the Canucks came back to even the count with 29 seconds remaining and then tacked on defeat No. 5 in overtime.

It was little wonder that Robinson came into Memorial Arena Wednesday night for a bout with Victoria Cougars wearing a sad smile and just counting the minutes until he could get his crew on an east-going plane.

He saw little to improve his outlook in the first 30 minutes against the Cats. Although Warriors grabbed the lead on a goal by Barrie Ross late in the first period, they were being outthrust and outplayed by George Agar's club and it seemed only a question of time until No. 6 was chalked up on the board.

Hounding the puck relentlessly and breaking alertly with a free-wheeling attack, the Cougars were continually buzzing in on the Winnipeg goal and it took a combination of poor shooting and some good stops by goalie Harry Lumley to keep them off the score-sheet in the first period.

Pressure paid off early in the second session and the Cougars jumped ahead on quick tallies by Gerry Goyer and Jim Moro, who turned in his best game of the young season.

Although they were proving that the best defence is a good attack, the Cats switched horses midway in the session. They changed tactics and started to play a waiting game, letting their rivals come to them.

OPEN SPACES
That was all the Warriors needed. Given room to work, they started to pick up steam and took charge down the home stretch as Victoria defenders missed checking assignments and left a flock of open spaces for Winnipeg wings.

Al Nicholson, shuffled off to Winnipeg by Victoria early last season, made it 2-2 in the first minute of the third period. Rookie Don Wilson fired his second goal of the season to send the Cougars in front again, but that was all for the home team.

Lorne Davis, a Cougar for three games 10 years ago, banged home a rebound to start a spurge of three Winnipeg goals in less than five minutes. Fleet Gordie Redahl fired what proved to be the winner and Davis wrapped up the scoring with his second tally with six minutes remaining.

Lumley, who looked downcast and embarrassed when Cougars shot lurked between his pads, was helped by erratic Victoria shooting, but also included a few brilliant stops in his total of 22 saves.

JOHANSEN STARRY

Cougars, getting a standout effort from centre Bill Johansen and a good performance from Moro, appeared good bets to chalk up their fourth straight home-ice triumph before they made the mistake of switching to a defensive game. And it's a cinch that Agar intends to have them back in the free-wheeling style that seems to be their best weapon when the arena Friday night.

For the suddenly-happy Robinson, who will have an even more dangerous club when the Warriors start working more as a unit, it was a surprise ending.

"The way the Cougars were going I never thought we were going to win that one," he said. "This is going to make the trip home a lot shorter."

SITS ON GOALIE

Haley Real Hero In Flyer Victory

EDMONTON (CP)—Edmonton Flyers grabbed first place in the Western Hockey League Wednesday night with a 4-3 win over the fledgling Portland Buckaroos before 2,385 fans. The win was Flyers' fifth in six games, their third straight on home ice, moving them two points in front of Vancouver Canucks and Seattle Totems, with whom they had been tied.

Veteran Bob Solinger set the pace for the Flyers with two goals. Singles went to Chuck Holmes and rookie Bob Goebel, back in action on a line with former Edmonton Oil Kings junior teammates Ed Joyal and Bruce MacGregor.

Portland's goals came in the first period from Arnie Schmautz and Art Jones and in the second period from defenceman Jack Bionda.

GAINS MOMENTUM

The game started at a slow and ragged pace with only occasional spurts of action at the close of each of the first two periods. Most activity came during the final 15 minutes of the third period.

The winning marker by Solinger, came at 8:22 of the final period with Len Haley picking up an assist by holding Portland goalie Don Head out of the play by sitting on him. Solinger merely shoved the puck into the open net.

Head was called on for 34 stops while Flyers' Dennis Riggin had 25 saves to make.

That's Price to Pay But Who Has Tickets?

VANCOUVER (CP)—Grey Cup general manager Harry McBrien arrived Wednesday for talks with local officials and said he thinks this year's game Nov. 26 will be a howling success.

McBrien said there will be no change in the ticket allotment from 1958, when the Grey Cup was last held in Vancouver. The West, being the host league, will get 75 per cent and the east 25.

Seating accommodation for this year's game at Empire Stadium will be 38,729, compared with 34,194 in 1958, and a sellout crowd would bring in approximately $323,000.

Seat prices will be the same as in the past—$10, $7.50, $6 and $5.

Junior Circuit Pops Expansion Surprise

Washington Gets New Franchise; Los Angeles, Twin Cities 'In'

NEW YORK (AP)—The American baseball league moves into Los Angeles next year, with Hank Greenberg as the owner, and Calvin Griffith is moving his Washington Senators into Minneapolis-St. Paul. The American League expanded to 10 clubs for 1961 Wednesday, with a new franchise to be set up in Washington. Its ownership will be announced later.

The surprise move beat the National League to the punch by one year. The older circuit only 14 days ago expanded to 10 teams for the 1962 season by granting franchises to Houston and New York. The American will operate under a 162-game schedule in 1961 and the National will do likewise, abandoning its 154-game schedule in 1962.

The American League has only six months in which to stock the Los Angeles and Washington teams, to start from scratch. Minneapolis-St. Paul will inherit a seasoned club that includes such sluggers as Harmon Killebrew, Bob Allison and Jim Lemon and such pitching stars as Camilo Pascual and Pedro Ramos.

STUDY PLAYER PROBLEM

A committee comprised of the present eight general managers gathered after the American League meeting to set up a formula to provide players for the two new cities.

One plan, still to be accepted, would freeze 15 players on each club. The rest would be made available for purchase at a figure estimated at $75,000 a player. No more than three players could be purchased from one club.

The vote to grant a franchise to Los Angeles was unanimous, but Griffith just managed to receive the necessary six votes. Cleveland Indians and Detroit Tigers voted against the Washington shift to Minneapolis-St. Paul.

Greenberg first must dispose of his stock in Chicago White Sox, of which he is vice-president, before he can acquire the Los Angeles franchise. Greenberg holds 20 per cent of the White Sox stock. No one would say he will operate the Los Angeles franchise, but it was learned definitely that he is the man.

EXPLAINS MOVE

Griffith said he decided to move to Minneapolis-St. Paul "for the betterment of the franchise."

"We've been guaranteed a million attendance for the first five years," he said.

The Los Angeles entry probably will play its 1961 home games in either the Los Angeles Coliseum or Wrigley Field, home of the old Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast League. Both are available, said American League president Joe Cronin.

The decision to accept Los Angeles and the twin cities left Toronto, Dallas-Fort Worth and Buffalo, other cities hopeful of landing franchises, out in the cold, at least for the time being.

"This is only the first step," Cronin said. "We are considering other cities for future expansion to 12 teams, possibly in 1962 or 1963."

Mount View Displays Rock-Ribbed Defence

One way to win a soccer title is to prevent anyone from scoring on you.

Mount View High School's entry in the Inter-High School Senior Soccer League seems bent on doing exactly that as the squad registered its fourth straight shutout Wednesday.

Esquimalt High was the latest victim as the View team steam-rolled its way to a 5-0 victory on a wet and slippery home ground.

Mount View now leads the league with a 4-0 record for the season, 20 goals on the credit side of the ledger and a, so far, impregnable defence.

Centre-forward Roy St. Dennis led the attack with two goals while Al Boden, Bill Duckworth and Ken Piercy each contributed one.

In another game Wednesday, Victoria High handed visiting Royal Oak a 3-0 setback. In the first half, Asbjorn Waldaa drove one in from 20 yards out to give Vic High a 1-0 halftime lead.

Chilliwack Club Plays In Victoria

Victoria's only junior football club steps up for introduction ceremonies Sunday.

The Hornets, coached by Ken Stokes, will play Chilliwack Mustangs of the Fraser Valley League at Macdonald Park. Game time is 2:30.

The game will be only the second home start for Hornets, who last week bowed 13-2 to Vampire Oldtimers.

Chilliwack beat the juniors 26-13 earlier this year although Hornets controlled much of the ground play in the game on the mainland.

Tillicums Take Lead

Tillicums took over first place in the Inter-Club Snooker League this week, defeating Britannia 7-5 while Elks were held to a 6-6 tie by Pro Pats. Eagles stepped into third place by trouncing ANAF 10-2.

CANADIAN ENTRY IN INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE

It's Really a Royal Idea!

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—New Westminster Royals, perennial Canadian soccer champions, are attempting to enter the highly-rated International League in New York.

Jack Spry, general manager of the team, said Wednesday the Royals have contacted International League president Bill Cox to find out if there is a spot for a Canadian entry.

Teams from Ireland, Yugoslavia, Argentina, Brazil, Scotland and other countries figure in the 1961 ISL plans.

Royals won a record eighth Canadian championship Sunday by defeating Toronto Golden Mile here, 4-0. Meanwhile, Royals are considering an invitation to play an exhibition game against Munich 1860, the German first division club. If Royals accept, the game will be played in Germany.

Washington Fans Won't Be Sorry To See Griff Go

NEW YORK (AP)—"The more the merrier," said a newspaper hawker in Los Angeles.

"We got a half dozen season ticket orders in the first few minutes," said a apolis-St. Paul Meropolitan "Our plan is more practical," said National League president Warren Giles.

"They'll run into problems in Los Angeles," said Walter O'Malley, president of the NL's Los Angeles Dodgers.

"Who do we get?" asked a Washington fan.

That's an example of the reaction to the American League's expansion move that adds Los Angeles and Minneapolis-St. Paul.

The league also has left the Washington franchise for a new owner and a new club, moving the Senators to the Twin Cities effective in 1961.

NL IS SURPRISED

The National League, which last week added Houston and New York, doesn't play on an expanded basis until 1962.

"I am surprised that they decided to expand in 1961," said Giles. "They know what's best for their league, of course, but I believe a more practical job can be done for the present eight clubs and the two new ones by waiting until 1962 and making the proper preparations."

Kayo Helps Hide Smear on Record

MONTREAL (CP)—World-rated Bob Cleroux, the Canadian heavyweight champ from Montreal, dropped Buddy Turman with a right hook Wednesday night for a second-round knockout over the Texan in a scheduled 10-rounder at the Montreal Forum.

The end came suddenly before a crowd estimated at 5,000, a disappointing turnout.

Both boys were feeling each other out when the 22-year-old Cleroux suddenly lashed out with the hook and caught Turman flush on the side of the head.

Turman toppled over on his side and was counted out at the 53-second mark by referee Tony Mancini.

In another bout, stiff-punching Joey Durelle, of Baie Ste. Anne, won his 15th fight in 16 pro appearances when he scored a fifth-round technical knockout over Ronnie Porambo, of Elizabeth, N.J.

Cleroux weighed 206½ to 187½ for the 26-year-old from Tyler, Tex.

The knockout — Cleroux's 20th in 26 pro fights — avenged a setback that Turman handed Cleroux 16 months ago in New York's Madison Square Garden, the only smear on the French-speaking Montrealer's record.

Turman now has a record of six losses, one draw and 35 wins.

Cleroux is ranked eighth in Ring Magazine's world listing of heavyweights and 10th by the National Boxing Association. The Canadian crown he won August 17 by outpointing Toronto's George Chuvalo was not at stake.

Antonelli on Block, Line Forms on Right

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Lively interest has greeted the announcement that Johnny Antonelli, San Francisco Giants' left-handed pitcher, is on the trading block.

The southpaw is being sought by clubs of both the American and National Leagues.

"Everybody knows Antonelli is up for a deal and everybody is making inquiries about him," said Giant vice-president Charles (Chub)

Feeney. "I doubt whether any player in either league has been the subject of more barter talk than has Johnny."

"We think he's still a top pitcher and so do other baseball men. We'll have to get quite a bit for him."

The veteran from Rochester, N.Y., has been with the Giants since 1954 when he won 21 games for the club that won the World Series. He won 20 in 1956 and 19 in 1959 after the club moved to San Francisco.

He posted a 6-7 record during the last season with appearances mainly in relief.

Residents Gird For Dam Battle

(Compiled from CP)

EDGEWOOD — Arrow Lake district residents have formed an association to protect themselves against the threat of High Arrow dam on the Columbia River when hydro-electric power development begins.

About 120 persons gathered here Tuesday night to form the Needles, Fauquier and Edgewood Citizens Protective Association, which will be registered under the B.C. Societies Act and will assess members $2 each.

Needles, Fauquier and Edgewood are three of 15 small communities that will be flooded if the dam is built just north of Castlegar.

The association's aims were set as these: 1, to oppose construction of a High Arrow dam; and 2, to fight for fair treatment on assessments, relocation and compensation if the dam is built.

In the communities affected, 1,624 persons would be homeless and the government is expected to buy out or relocate these residents.

AWARD TO PROFESSOR

VANCOUVER — A classics professor whose connection with the University of B.C. goes back to 1913 received the Great Trekker award from graduates and students of the university Wednesday. He is Col. Harry T. Logan, professor emeritus and "grand old man" of UBC.

ANOTHER BABY

PRINCE GEORGE — Yvonne Mary Wade, convicted Tuesday with her husband on charges of criminal negligence and failure to perform their duty as parents, was rushed to hospital from city jail cells Wednesday and soon after gave birth to a girl.

The 22-year-old woman was being held in city jail awaiting sentence along with her husband, Lawrence Wade, 30. They were charged in connection with neglect of their 10-month-old son, Albert James, who was found suffering from malnutrition last April.

LIBEL ACTION

VANCOUVER — Two Vancouver labor leaders have started a Supreme Court action for libel against five members of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Ironworkers, Local 97.

Norman Edmondson and Thomas McGrath allege that John Marcus, Robert Wrixon, George Sinclair, Victor Morell, and Sidney Stewart libelled them in a mimeographed letter and in a mimeographed submission to the Labor Relations Board, both mailed to members of the local.

Edmondson and McGrath are former officers of Local 97.

TORIES BACK EXPORT

PRINCE GEORGE — The National Energy Board, was asked to review its present policy on forbidding export of power to the United States in a resolution passed Sunday at the annual convention of the Cariboo Progressive Conservative Association.

The board was asked to make recommendations to the federal government on the feasibility of continuing the policy in the light of present-day developments and economic demands.

Delegates from Prince George, Quesnel, Vanderhoof, Dawson Creek and Fort St. John also called for the completion of paving of the Alaska Highway in co-operation with the U.S. government.

MAYOR STEPHEN JUBA

Juba, Sunday Sport Score In Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP) — Mayor Stephen Juba of Winnipeg was re-elected to office Wednesday with the largest majority in his career as chief magistrate.

With all returns in from the 425 polls in the city, Mayor Juba had 57,370 votes. His only opponent, two-time loser Stan Carrick, had 5,082. Mayor Juba was elected to his third consecutive two-year term of office.

Mayor Juba, 46, is a native son of Winnipeg, who also has two elections to the Manitoba legislature to his credit, both times running as an Independent. He ran twice for mayor before being elected, in 1932 and in 1954.

BACK SUNDAY SPORT

In addition to voting for the mayor, City of Winnipeg voters also passed a Sunday sports referendum and a $4,000,000 school board money bylaw. However, a $3,250,000 "omnibus" bylaw, which required a 60 per cent majority to pass, was defeated.

NEGOTIATORS' STAND BACKED BY BIG VOTE

Greater Victoria Teachers' Association Wednesday approved the bargaining position taken by its salary negotiating team for a 12 per cent increase.

At an association meeting a few hours prior to the negotiating session with school trustees which wound up in a deadlock, the association members held a secret ballot on a motion expressing confidence in its negotiators.

"The vote passed 356 to 47," a spokesman said.

Teachers, Trustees Deadlocked

A 12 per cent salary increase sought by Greater Victoria teachers will go to conciliation for a final effort at settlement before arbitration procedures automatically come into play November 15.

Negotiating committee for the teachers and the Greater Victoria school board met Tuesday night but agreed they could not settle their differences on salary requests after an hour's discussion.

The teachers' representatives said they were prepared to reduce their request if trustees would alter their decision refusing any increase over 1960 salaries.

"We're not prepared to make any upward revision in our offer," replied trustee Kenneth Leeming, chairman of the board's negotiating team.

He added that the board felt it would be justified in counter-proposing a salary cut this year for teachers on the basis of general economic conditions in the community.

"There is not much point in our changing our position if you won't change yours," said V. N. Sewell, chairman of the teachers' committee.

Next step requires both sides to select a conciliator by November 5.

The conciliators will attempt to bring about a compromise but if no settlement is reached by November 15 a three-man arbitration board will be set up, under provisions of the Public Schools Act.

Both the committees, despite some bitter exchanges, emphasized they were pleased that all other issues in dispute outside of salaries had been settled amicably.

Both sides declared they were interested in raising teaching standards and attracting more qualified teachers.

The teachers maintained that professionally-trained workers should be paid professional salaries but the board maintained reasonable salaries were now paid and the taxpayers could not afford more.

AUTO PROBE SUGGESTION

'Beaver' Economy Car for Canada?

OTTAWA (CP)—A "beaver" car, "bread-and-butter" cars and a mythical "car called desire" cruised before the royal commission on the automotive industry Wednesday.

Prof. Vincent Bladen, of Toronto, the one-man commission, questioned union, farm, community and unemployed groups into what can be done for an industry assaulted by growing competition from cheap foreign imports and assailed by unemployment.

"The utility, austerity Canadian beaver" was the tag hung by Dr. Bladen on the suggestion by Alf Greave, of Biggar, Sask., chairman of the Inter-provincial Farm Union Council, that Canada turn out its own economy car—through a public utility monopoly if necessary.

Gordon L. Lambert, presenting a brief by the national Canadian General Motors intra-corporation council of the United Automobile Workers, said the American-style bread-and-butter car is the lower-priced type in each maker's stable. He said constant style changes, causing annual re-tooling, force layoffs up to six or seven weeks for some employees.

The car called desire never was identified although it kept cropping up in lighter-hearted moments during the day.

Dr. Bladen also emphasized these points:

1. He hopes to turn out a report as quickly as possible although he agreed it may not prove easy in a complex problem.

2. Many witnesses tell him Canada has the technical skill to turn out more automotive parts but less easily explained is how to get the volume that will cut costs in a country of 18,000,000.

3. Opponents of more integration between the industry in the United States and Canada, where producers are American subsidiaries, either do so on grounds of nationalism or fear that the U.S. would accept Canadian-made parts and models only if assured of a better deal for herself.

"What I must explore is the chance of mutual benefit," said Dr. Bladen.

GRID SEMIFINAL SLATED FOR TV

First game of the two-game total-point Western Inter-provincial Football Union semifinal between Edmonton and Calgary will be carried on television, CBC officials have announced.

Scheduled at Edmonton next Wednesday, the game will be carried over channels 2 and 6, starting at 7.30 p.m.

B.C. Game Warden Rex Hayes, Dead

Funeral services were held in Vancouver on the weekend for Rex Hayes, well-known game warden and former member of the B.C. Police.

He transferred from the police to the game branch in 1938, and served as a game warden at Duncan, Courtenay and Campbell River. Six months ago he was transferred to Cloverdale.

Surviving are the widow, two daughters and two sons.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court Wednesday: Ivor Goodmans, 1064 Deal, $35 for careless driving.

George Leslie Wildman, Work Point, $10 for making an illegal left turn.

Giancarlo Scattola, 344 Simcoe, $15 for driving with inadequate hand brake.

'NO ROOM FOR UNSKILLED'

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP)—In 15 or 20 years there will be no place for the unskilled worker in Canada, M. J. Caldwell, honorary CCF leader, said Wednesday night. He told a rally for New Party candidate Walter Pitman, contesting the Oct. 31 federal by-election in the Peterborough riding, that more educational facilities are needed.

"Thousands of our boys and girls who are at school today are being denied the chance to improve their education standards because we haven't enough schools, colleges, universities, teachers, professors and instructors," he said.

PLEASURE AFLOAT

How to Keep the Capsized Boat Afloat

Small boats are the ones most likely to tip over.

Builders and owners have been taking a new look at ways to keep them afloat, should they capsize.

While wooden craft always possessed some natural buoyancy, new fibreglas and metal boats will sink once they fill with water unless some form of flotation is installed. Dinghies, skiffs and rowboats particularly can be swamped.

Safety Built In

Youngsters clowning around, fishermen who stand up and move about carelessly, boatmen who head into rough seas or overload a small craft can end up in the water.

Flotation chambers are becoming standard equipment on pleasure boats large and small. Even wooden craft are using them to counterbalance the added weight of outboard motor and gear should the boat fill.

Double floors with an air space between are frequently found in plastic craft. Metal boats often seal off bow and stern sections to form air compartments.

These, too, might puncture or start to leak. Builders have been installing Styrofoam or similar air-cell plastics so that water cannot fill a flotation chamber. The material is often fastened under the seats of a craft to help keep it afloat.

Quick Expansion

Next year will see increased use of polyurethane foams. These remarkable products go into action when several chemicals are mixed. They quickly expand and foam up to fill sections of the boat, and then harden in place to fit the area.

A bow section up under the forward deck of a runabout might be foamed full of this plastic. Once it has solidified both new flotation and structural reinforcement are the result.

Another approach to adequate flotation is the use of microballoons. These tiny spheres, five thousandths of an inch in size, can be mixed in with polyester resin to harden into a solid offering strength and flotation. Poured into an enclosed space they form a rigid but light strength member as well.

The wise boatman will look for a craft that can keep motor, passengers and gear afloat even when awash. If this should happen, the flotation should be placed so that the hull will float upright.

U.S. Prestige DID Drop 'Secret' Survey Shows

NEW YORK (AP) — The collapse of the summit conference, New York Times and the Washington Post have disclosed what they say is a confidential government survey made last June reporting a U.S. loss of prestige with the British and French public.

The Post says it obtained a copy of the summary, compiled by the U.S. Information Agency's office of research and analysis. The newspaper also says the summary was prepared for the national security council, of which Vice-President Richard Nixon, the Republican presidential nominee, is vice-chairman.

The Times, publishing the full text of the summary as well as a story, notes that the analysis referred to last week's survey is not the opinion by Senator J. William Fulbright (Dem., Ark.), chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee. Fulbright had been seeking copies of a prestige report dated Aug. 29 as well as what he termed a later "barometer survey" by the USIA.

RUSSIA ALSO LOST

The Times said the survey showed the Soviet Union also lost prestige in the eyes of the British and French after the European powers are a debasement of the truth. The survey percentage figures published by both The Times and The Post are the same.

The Times says the survey, based on an opinion sample of 1,150 British residents and 1,000 French residents made late in May, gave these major conclusions:

1. "Though the U.S.S.R. is blamed most for collapse of the (mid-May) summit conference, a majority blamed both sides at least in part."

2. "Favorable opinion for the United States as a country and for President Eisenhower has declined in the wake of the summit collapse."

3. "Particularly in Great Britain, current confidence is low in America's capacity for leadership in dealing with present world problems."

4. "There is little support in the present survey for any supposition that the story of the U-2 overflights, however adverse in other respects, strengthened judgments of America's military standing vis-a-vis the Soviet Union."

In a speech last Thursday night in San Francisco, President Eisenhower said reports of U.S. loss of prestige among

PACIFIC FLEET CHIEF SAYS:

U.S. Can Defend Islands

SEATTLE (AP) — The commander-in-chief of the United States Pacific fleet said Wednesday the offshore Chinese islands of Quemoy and Matsu can be defended successfully "if we put enough into it."

Admiral John H. Sides also indicated he believes they should be protected.

"Once you give a little, you've just about had it," he said in a luncheon club speech. Sides said he feels the wrangle over Quemoy and Matsu between Vice-President Richard Nixon and Senator John F. Kennedy has proved harmful to the United States in the Far East.

He said he was dining with Chiang Kai-shek on Formosa "when this matter first came to light about two weeks ago."

"He was bewildered. His opinion was that the people of our country just don't understand the feeling of Nationalist China."

N.Y. Times for Kennedy

WITH KIDS WHO KNOW ICE CREAM...

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Vice-President Richard M. Nixon moved ahead of Sen. John F. Kennedy last week for the first time in the southern California Good Humor ice cream poll.

Ice cream bars with Nixon outsold Kennedy bars 27,909 to 26,646 in the third week of the poll, the firm announced today. Kennedy, however, still holds an overall edge of 81,532 to 78,681 in bars sold in southern California.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Times today endorsed Sen. John F. Kennedy for president.

The Times, which supported President Eisenhower in 1952 and 1956, said in an editorial in today's edition the two chief reasons it selected Kennedy were "a matter of foreign policy" and "the present political situation here at home."

The Times, "speaking as an independent newspaper," said Sen. Kennedy's approach in the Quemoy and Matsu issue "as in other matters of foreign policy, except for his momentary blunder suggesting intervention in Cuba, a position from which he quickly retreated, seems to us to be more reasoned, less emotional, more flexible, less doctrinaire, more imaginative, less negative than that of" Vice-President Richard M. Nixon.

The Times said both houses of the next Congress would probably be democratic.

"With his personal warmth and widespread popular support, President Eisenhower was able to bridge this division to some extent. Mr. Nixon, we think, would be far less able to do so..."

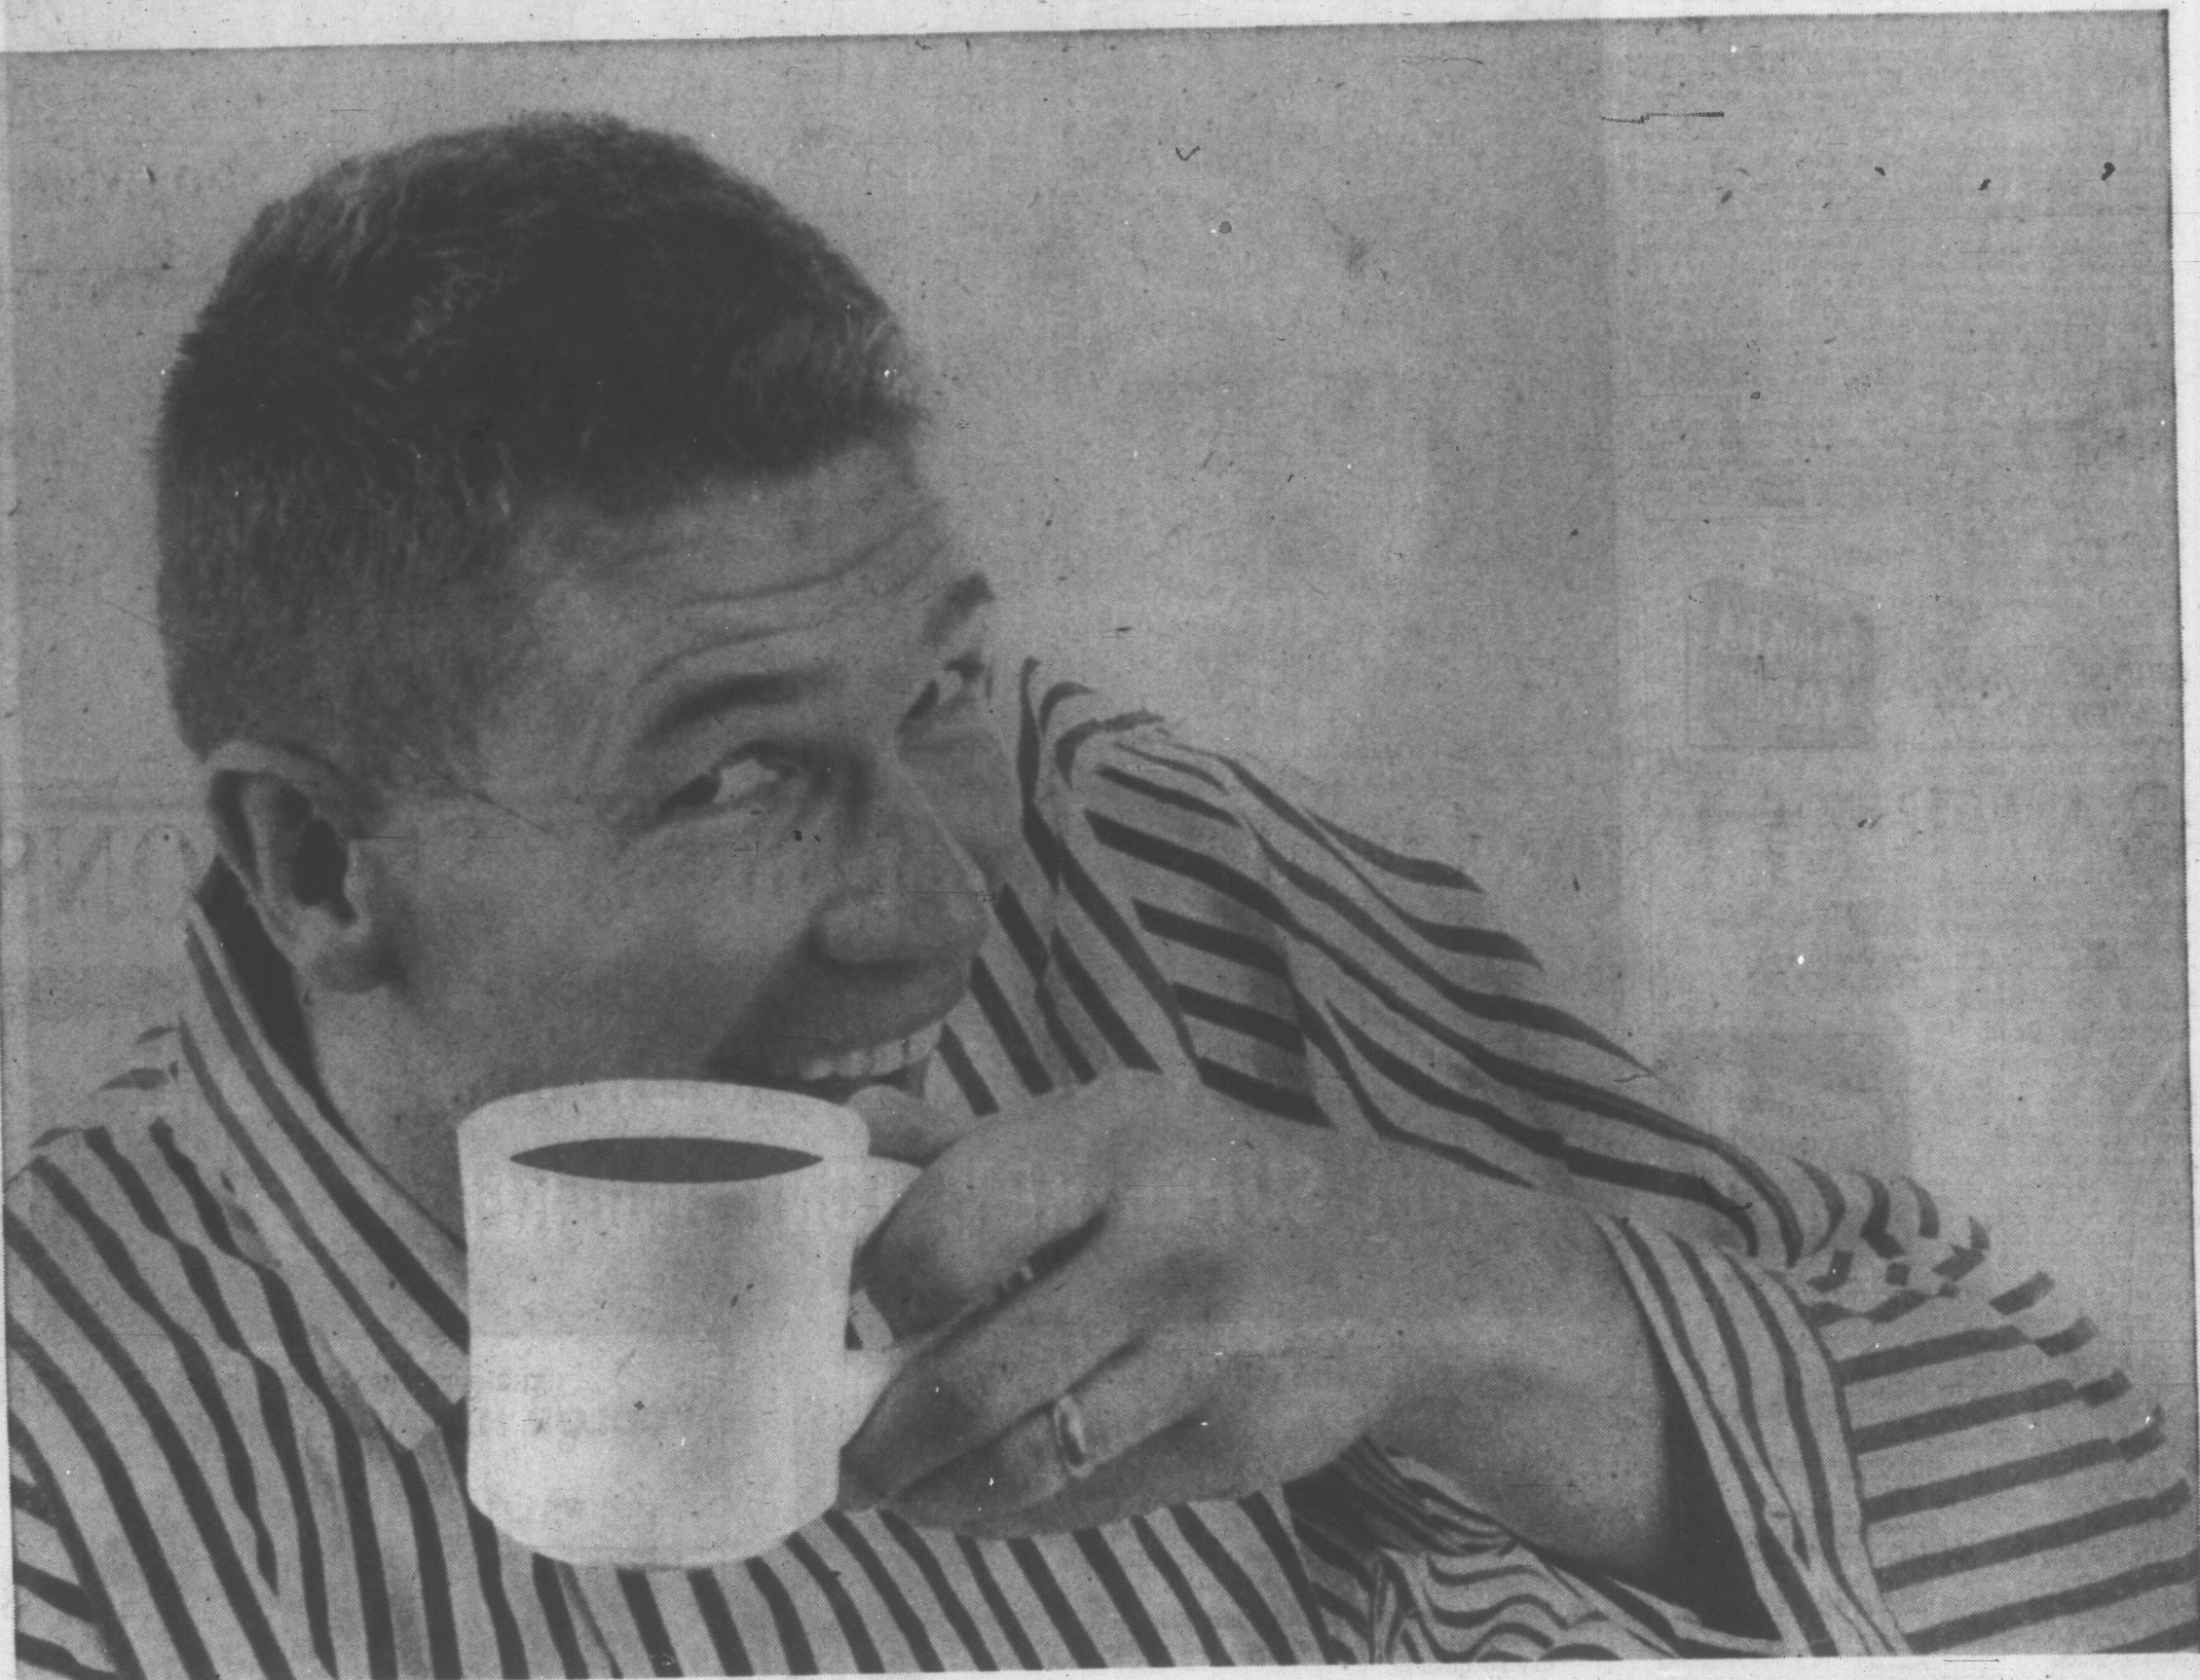

Test Talks Deadline By Nixon

WITH NIXON IN MICHIGAN (AP) — Vice-President Richard Nixon entered politically doubtful Michigan today promising voters that if he's elected, his running mate, Henry Cabot Lodge, will go immediately to Geneva to negotiate with Russia on a nuclear testing ban.

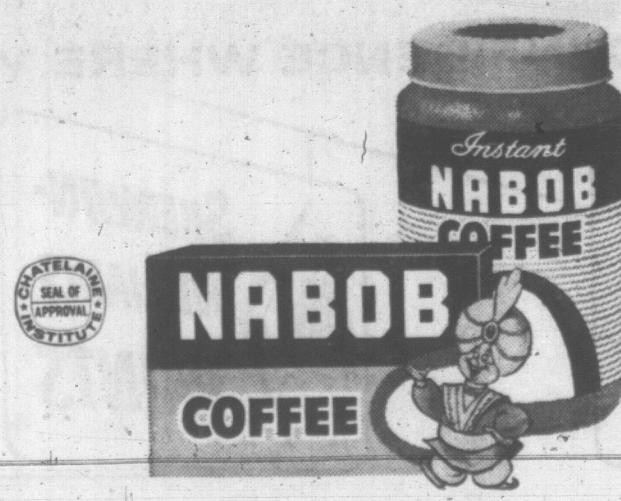

Should the Russians agree to foolproof inspection under which military tests would be banned, Nixon said he would be willing to meet in a summit conference with Soviet Premier Khrushchev and Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain to make the agreement final.

Should no agreement be obtained by Feb. 1, Nixon said he would order resumption of underground shots designed to test peaceful uses of atomic power. Thus Nixon proposed an 80-day post-election deadline for test ban treaty.

The Republican presidential nominee's virtual ultimatum to Khrushchev was made with White House approval.

Air-Lift Record for RCAF In 'Argus' Hawaii Flight

68 On Board Non-Stop Plane

NEWEST AND BIGGEST RCAF aircraft, the turbo-prop "Argus," set record Wednesday for largest, longest non-stop airlift in RCAF history.

An Argus aircraft, stripped of its detection gear, flew from Comox to Hawaii Wednesday, on the largest and longest single non-stop air movement of personnel in the history of the RCAF.

The plane carried 68 persons, compared with a normal crew of 18, and flew non-stop for 14 hours to cover 2,300 miles.

The aircraft, based at Greenwood, N.S., had been converted earlier for use in carrying troops to the Congo, but this mission did not materialize.

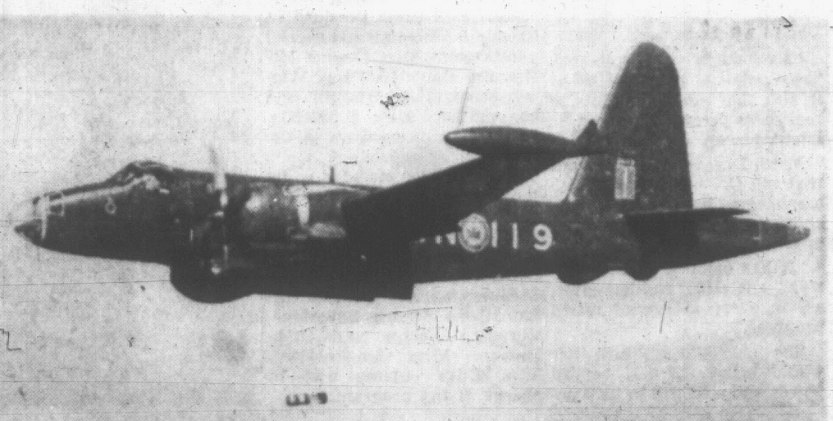

The RCAF personnel being carried to Hawaii are 50 ground support airmen from 407 Maritime Patrol Squadron, five of whose Neptune aircraft are taking part in an anti-submarine warfare exercise with air and sea units of United States and Canadian navies.

Two Neptunes left Tuesday, two Wednesday, the fifth today, to proceed to the U.S. air base at Barber's Point, near Pearl Harbor, travelling via Alameda, Calif.

The Department of National Defence has stated the Comox-based Neptune's will be replaced eventually by the 4,000-mile range Argus, largest RCAF aircraft in use. The Argus was developed for the RCAF from the Bristol Britannia, turbo-prop aircraft decided on as the answer to Canada's need to replace Lancasters formerly on coastal patrol duty.

Basic function of the electronics-loaded Argus is as a submarine hunter-killer.

Already taking part in the Hawaiian exercise, Canadian phase of which is under direction of Esquimalt Headquarters.

SUB-HUNTING NEPTUNE aircraft from RCAF base at Comox are taking part in joint ASW exercises with U.S. forces in Hawaiian area.

... HERE AND THERE ...

With NORMAN CRIBBENS

Many must have scented subtle propaganda in the Russian movie of the Bolshoi Ballet performing Tchaikovsky's Swan Lake.

Between every dance the camera picked out members of the audience in the Bolshoi Theatre in Moscow—and what happy, contented, well-fed-looking citizens it picked! They almost seemed to be saying "What a nice kind government to give us this lovely ballet!"

Addressing Victoria Kiwanis, G. M. Morris of Vancouver Board of Trade gave this definition of a club committee:

"The unwilling appointed by the unfit to do the unnecessary."

I say, Mr. Morris, that's a bit sweeping isn't it?

The average American family spends $500 a year on the mere packaging of its purchases, says Michael Barkway, Ottawa editor of the Toronto Star.

Mr. Barkway objects to Canadians having to pay for this packaging of goods imported from the States. "American manufacturers believe they can sell anything if it has the right kind of label," he said.

A British manufacturer shared this belief—for a while. He sold tins labelled "sliced pineapple." But inside were slices of turnip soaked in a pineapple-flavored chemical.

The fine was $1,500!

Congratulations to Maurice Johnson of the engineering division, B.C. Forest Service. His brochure The Forest Engineer has been adopted by the Stephen F. Austin State College, Texas.

The brochure was addressed to B.C. high school students looking for a career, but the American university seemed to think it would appeal equally to the youth of Texas.

Concerning effusions in this column about the need for more songs about British Columbia, Mrs. J. W. Fletcher of Esquimalt sends this quotation from the poet Andrew Fletcher (1703):

Let me make the songs of a nation And I care not who makes it's laws.

THREE SAVED IN SINKING OF FISHBOAT

Three persons were rescued today when their gillnet fishing boat sank in Georgia Strait near Nanaimo.

The tug Cub, operated by Roy Parrish, reached the fishing boat in time to remove owner John Weston and his wife and Simon Paul, all of Courchesne, a settlement at the northern end of Georgia Strait.

The name of the gillnetter was not immediately learned. It is reported to have started to fill rapidly after springing a leak.

Sub-Hunt Big Test In Gales

Crew Under Cover During Operation

Five ships of the RCN Pacific Command returned to Esquimalt at 10.30 a.m. today after a rough-and-tumble encounter with winter gales "somewhere off the West coast" that lasted over a week.

Location and purpose of the exercises undertaken by the destroyers Ottawa and St. Laurent, and the frigates Beacon Hill, New Glasgow, and Antigonish has not been officially revealed by the navy.

But one week ago today it was announced "surface units of the Canadian Maritime Command Pacific are investigating an unidentified contact off the west coast"—meaning a submarine hunt was on.

SILENCE ORDERED

The navy does not reveal either positive or negative results of such a hunt. Ships companies have been warned not to discuss any aspect of the mission concluded today.

However, the weather is unclassified—and it varied from bad to worse, with gale force winds, towering, ever-changing seas, and heavy rain squalls.

The two destroyers proved the worth of the all-Canadian design, which includes the capability to fight or steam the ship with every officer and man in enclosed positions.

During the foulest weather, both destroyers "buttoned down" and operated at peak efficiency without a single man on deck and no danger of the dread "man overboard" cry.

The smaller frigates also operated well in the rough going, according to unofficial reports, as their hulls were designed for heavy seas.

The destroyers were at sea, and due home last Friday, when they were given new orders Wednesday, Oct. 19. The frigates were on a "one-day" cruise when the diversion order came.

Bail Increased In Traffic Death Neglect Charge

Bail was increased $1,000 to $3,000 for 20-year-old James William Hamilton when he was formally committed in Colwood RCMP court Wednesday on a criminal negligence charge.

He is expected to go to trial at the current Criminal Assize, charged with causing the death of Gary Samuel Stenford, 19, of 900 Lavender, a pedestrian in collision with Hamilton's car at Langford.

Application for the increase in bail was made by Alan Bigelow, acting for the Crown.

Swift Kick Damps Ardor Of Intruder

Three women complained to police of prowlers in a five-hour period Wednesday night and at one house a swim instructor kicked the intruder downstairs.

It was the latest outbreak in a series of prowlings and assaults which began two weeks ago.

Mrs. Marjorie Naysmith, 2947 Shelbourne, a popular swimming teacher in Greater Victoria, said she had just let a girl friend out of a back door around 10.30 when she heard someone there again and thought it was her friend returning.

"I opened the inside door and said, 'What did you forget?' There he was.

SAME PROCEDURE

"He grabbed me around the neck and muttered something about 'I'm going to kiss you.' Mrs. Naysmith said.

"I kicked him and he fell all the way down our back stairs."

She described him as young, wearing a light-colored jacket and long black hair.

The description was similar to others given police after previous incidents.

TWO MORE TRIES

Mrs. E. Blevit, 3139 Irma, complained at 5.15 p.m. of a middle-aged man about five feet seven inches tall, or heavy build, dark complexion and wearing a checked jacket who rang her doorbell and looked in a front window.

When the door was answered the man hesitated, then ran.

At 9.46 a Mrs. Hobbs, of 708 Suffolk, said a youth about 18 years old peeked in her window from a tree. She said he wore long, black leather jacket with white stripes on the sleeves.

Wet, Rush-Hour Accident Leaves Woman Badly Hurt

Witnesses Sought To Downtown Crash

Police have asked any witnesses to come forward following a rush-hour crash that sent an 84-year-old woman pedestrian to hospital with multiple injuries Wednesday.

Mrs. Elizabeth Annie Armistage, 3116 Steele, is in fair condition with two broken legs, concussion and internal injuries, being treated at St. Joseph's Hospital.

She was in collision with a car driven by William H. Neill, 3855 Rowland, as she tried to cross Douglas between Larch and Finlayson in the rain at 5.15 p.m.

Police are holding Neill's car.

They quote him as saying he saw the woman as she walked westward and applied his brakes and horn, but the pedestrian kept going.

18-YEAR-OLD HURT

Eighteen-year-old Frederick David Greenidge, 218 Suzanne, is in "satisfactory" condition at Jubilee Hospital following another accident at 8 p.m. in Saanich.

A runaway car picked up momentum as it rolled 525 feet down Heath Drive and shot into Gorge Road to collide with his car, causing about $1,500 total damage and nearly knocking the Greenidge car into the Gorge.

The youth was admitted to hospital with shock, bruises, face and shoulder cuts.

SLIPPED BRAKES

Saanich police found a late model station wagon owned by Mrs. Margaret E. Clark, 2853 Heath, had slipped its hand brake, which Mrs. Clark said she applied in her driveway while she opened her garage doors.

She said she took out the car keys, left the parking lights on and set the brake. While her back was turned the car rolled back across Heath for 71 feet, then turned and rolled toward Gorge Road.

After the impact, Greenidge's car went for 114 feet along the edge of the Gorge before stopping.

Hospital Contract

A $4,300 contract for construction of a temporary wooden corridor connecting east and west wings of Royal Jubilee Hospital has been awarded to Herb Bate Ltd., lowest of five bidders. The corridor will be used to transport food and patients between the wings when the old administration building in the pending pending specific area is demolished to make way for the new $2,000,000 wing.

NO AUTHORIZATION

C. T. W. Hyslop, provincial superintendent of lands, wrote that the fill operation already had begun without authorization by B.C. Yacht Brokerage, 35 Songhees Road, which has leased foreshore area.

Work now has been suspended pending specific approval from the lands and forests department for the land fill project.

'Trial Likely' For Hydrofoil Next Week

The off-again on-again hydrofoil ferry "very possibly" may make a test run from Bellingham to Victoria next week, Bellingham Mayor John Westford said today.

The 60-passenger "Flying Fish" was given a seaworthiness ticket by the U.S. Coast Guard Wednesday "and will be back in the water today or Friday for some initial tests around Bellingham," Mayor Westford told The Times in a telephone interview.

VARIETY OF ILLS

The hydrofoil has been plagued by a number of mechanical problems, shipyard mishaps during fitting out and other delays which have caused several postponements of its first run to Victoria to demonstrate its capabilities as a fast ferry.

"We had the government inspection just to be doubly sure that she was perfectly safe for passenger duties," said Mayor Westford.

Meanwhile, Victoria city council today was asked if it had any objections to construction of a 60-foot seaward fill in the Inner Harbor for docking the hydrofoil near Johnson Street bridge.

New Camera Group Fosters Education

A Vancouver Island chapter of the Photographic Society of America—the first in Canada—has been formed here, it was announced today.

The new chapter, comprising 35 members living on Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands, is the result of four years' organization by Victoria photographer James McVie, F.P.S.A.

"It will engage in community projects designed to foster photographic education in the Vancouver Island area," said Mr. McVie, who is Canadian director of the Photographic Society in the Vancouver Island area.

MONTHLY MEETING

Mr. McVie with Stanley C. Dakin, A.R.P.S., of Nanaimo, and Thomas Haynes are directors of the new chapter which will meet in Victoria Art Gallery on the third Wednesday of each month at 8 p.m. Next meeting is scheduled for Nov. 16.

John Muir is president of the chapter with Stanley Dakin as vice-president and Mrs. Evelyn Burt-Smith of Sidney as secretary.

The chapter will take in "more serious members" of Victoria Camera Club, HMC Dockyard Camera Club, Victoria Amateur Motion Picture Society, Oak Bay Camera Club and professional people, such as doctors and dentists, who are interested in photography. Mr. McVie said he decided

MLA-ELECT SCORES ARROW DAM PLAN

B.C., Ottawa in 'Unholy War'

Years of study by engineers has been "thrown into the Columbia River" by the agreement to build an Arrow Lakes dam, the CCF's new power critic said here today.

George "Tiny" Hobbs—he's six foot five—new MLA for Revelstoke, arrived this morning to look over his new office and with a long list of hydro queries for Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston.

He also criticized Wenner-Gren interests in Peace River hydro as a "stock-promotion bonanza" aided and abetted by construction of the Arrow project, which will increase the cost of power from the Columbia River.

Mr. Hobbs, a locomotive engineer, said Ottawa and B.C. are still fighting "an unholy war" over details of the agreement announced recently for a draft treaty with the U.S.

He promised a stiff fight in his constituency against building Arrow as first water storage dam on the Columbia.

Much of the flooding caused by the dam will occur in that constituency.

Mr. Hobbs maintains Mica Creek dam—second project planned—will be sufficient for U.S. and Canadian power needs and flood control.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

First meeting of the winter season of the Royal Society of St. George will be held in the YWCA, Courtney Street, Friday evening at 8.

Society president F. P. Boucher has just returned from a trip to England and Holland and will show the pictures he took there. The meeting is open to the public.

She's Helping ... Are You?

TODAY'S COMMUNITY CHEST PERSONALITY

is Mrs. Isabel Hawkins, 2670 Sea View, who holds the position of area chairman in Oak Bay for the residential division in this year's biggest ever campaign. She is a director of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria and is a past president of the ladies' auxiliary to the gallery. She is also a member of the PEO Sisterhood.

Regular meeting of Esquimalt council will be held in the municipal hall 7.30 p.m. Tuesday. Meetings are usually held Monday but that would mean a clash with Halloween next week.

Some councillors are members of Esquimalt Lions Club which is organizing two bonfires that night and the remainder hope to spend the evening with their children.

Two 13-year-old Colwood boys each were put on six months' probation when they appeared in Colwood juvenile court Wednesday charged with theft.

Police said the youngsters took two red signal lamps from along the E & N Railway right of way at Langford.

Old Age Pensioners Association, No. 1, will meet in the Knights of Pythias Hall, Cormorant Street, next Wednesday at 1.30. Business part of the afternoon will be taken up with nomination of officers.

A meeting of the general council of Greater Victoria PTA will be held at North Ward School, Friday at 8 p.m.

The Lake Hill School Fun Fair will be held Saturday, Nov. 5, from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. at the school.

There will be a sale of home cooking, sewing and knitting, plants and other items.

Movies will be shown and games organized for both adults and children.

Admission is free.

Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele will be asked to call a special meeting of council as soon as possible to protest a 7 a.m. to 10 a.m. electricity "blackout" in the municipality Sunday.

Coun. James Bryant said the B.C. Electric plan to cut off electricity throughout the entire municipality during these hours was "crazy."

He said he would ask the reeve and council to take a stand against the move, designed to change the electrical supply from 4,000 to 12,000 volts.

"It must be done, but why can't it be done at a more reasonable time, such as 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.?" Coun. Bryant asked.

Council should have been consulted concerning the switchover time before it was scheduled, he added.

ASK THE TIMES

Q.—Are ladybugs harmful to the garden?—S.D.

A.—There are about 150 different kinds of ladybugs, and only two types eat garden produce. The others eat plant lice and smaller bugs, so the good they do far outweighs the harm.

Q.—How long has the Loch Ness monster been known?—H.P.

A.—He, or it, has never actually been known, but there have been reports of a monster in the Northern Scottish lake dating back to the 1200s.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily. UN Likened to Teen-Ager— Not Aware of Latent Power

Speaking on the 15th anniversary of the founding of the United Nations, at a supper meeting of Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club, Monday evening, Mrs. Marian Downey likened the UN to a teen-ager.

"A teen-ager," she explained, "who gets criticism levelled at it and that somehow fails to realize its potentialities and its latent power."

Mrs. Downey pointed out that the UN had achieved "almost incredible results for the short time it has been in existence."

"It has doubled its membership," she said, "and has given aid in every sphere of man's progress."

She looked to a future that would bring the UN "added power and strength to help untold millions who need so much from us all" and expressed the belief that "the 15-year-old teen-ager will develop into an all-powerful, life-saving and peace-giving adult."

Miss Ella Brett presided at the supper meeting and special guests were Miss Dianne McNe, the club's 1960 Bay Wigley scholarship winner, and her mother, Mrs. S. McNe. Table decorations were in the United Nations theme.

Program also included an informal panel discussion on the structure of business and professional women's club organization at local, provincial, national and international levels.

Speakers were Mrs. M. Laughlin, Misses Minnie Beveridge, Elizabeth Forbes and Hilda Hesson. First vice-president, Miss Ruth Adams was in charge of the program.

Pale Green Net and Lace In Formal Wedding Gown

Sequins sparkled on the skirt of pale green net and lace gown worn by Yvonne Barbara Josephine Fry for her recent marriage to Brian Robert Egan in St. Peter's Church, Duncan. Matching lace bolero jacket and gloves were in tone. Her jewelry was a culture pearl necklace, a gift of her mother, and matching earrings, gift of the groom. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink carnations which was later sent to her great-grandmother, Mrs. Mary J. Cockings in Victoria.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Fry of Duncan and Mrs. D. Egan, Shawigan Lake. Rev. W. E. Greenhalgh performed the double-ring ceremony.

Maid of honor, Miss Doreen Herling, chose a pale pink net gown, complemented with a white stole and accessories. Pink gladioli were in her colonial bouquet. Pamela Fry, sister of the bride, as flower girl wore a pale blue net gown and white accessories. She carried pink gladioli and white carnations in a dainty basket.

Michel Pepler, Mill Bay, cousin of the bride, was best man. Her uncle, Fred Vauk, proposed the toast at a reception in his home. Pink gladioli, pink carnations and white miniature chrysanthemums decorated rooms for the occasion. A two-tier wedding cake centred the head table which was covered with a lace cloth and decorated with green candles and colored carnations and chrysanthemums.

Newlyweds will make their home in Duncan after a honeymoon spent travelling on the Island.

Institute Work—Ancient, Historic and Honorable

OTTAWA (CP)—Farm women should "stop apologizing for themselves," says Mr. L. G. Lymburner of Port Colborne, president of the Ontario Federation of Women's Institutes.

She told some 250 farm women attending the 45th annual convention of Ottawa area institutes Wednesday that they belong to an "ancient, historic and honorable profession."

"The economy of the world depends on food producers," Now that farming is big business, she said, farm organizations must be established on an industrial scale.

"Expand your institute circles beyond people you have known for years who think alike and do the same things. That is very pleasant—but it is not the way the Women's Institute carries on."

She said members must raise their horizons to the international scope of their organization. Those in other countries looked to Canadian women to give leadership in an organization they started.

Exchange visits between farm women of various provinces might be a way for Canadians to help one another know their own country.

Years of Extra Life For Valuable Rugs and Carpets

Do you really know why rugs and carpets wear out? Constant use does dull their beauty by covering bright colors with dirt and grime. But far worse is the grinding away of the actual fibres from which the rug is made by sharp gritty particles deep within the pile. This can be prevented only by professional "deep cleaning" as done by experts at the CARPETORUM. The people at the CARPETORUM have the knowledge, use only the finest special cleaning agents and have the best equipment in Western Canada. The cost is most reasonable and estimates are FREE. Phone the CARPETORUM at EV 3-2861. Only the CARPETORUM, 1216 Wharf Street, can give your rugs and carpets the professional "deep cleaning" that will guarantee years of extra life. THE TIME OF THEIR LIVES

Into the life of every child comes a time to learn the value of saving. This is a lesson the B of M is anxious to cooperate with parents in teaching. That's why "MY BANK" keeps open special school wickets where the younger set can do their banking every Friday after school—just like mom and dad. B of M school wickets have proved their worth in encouraging children to put some of their pennies aside.

A single dollar deposit is enough to get any of your children off at the right wicket to lifetime habits of thrift.

Why not send them to the B of M this Friday? Or, better still, come along with them.

This English Immigrant Bound To Be a Success

By PENNY SAVER

Have you ever met Donald Duck's English cousin, Dandy? He may not be as much of an extrovert as his American relation but, believe me, he's quite a person! Standing about 12 inches high, Dandy is a colorful wild duck that will serve you faithfully as clothes brush and stand for many years to come.

Realistic breast of Dandy is actually the bristles of the curved-back brush. Natural coloring of plumage, beak and feet make Dandy ornamental as well as useful.

Most accommodating, he'll allow you to use his head as a handle. Remove it temporarily and you have an excellently-made clothes brush with which to spruce up.

Head back in place, Dandy is just the sort of attractive, well-behaved duck that sportsmen—and their wives—love to have around their home! He can be yours for $4.95.

Culinary experts will want to get in on the "special" in one downtown store that brings elegant 10-inch-high salt and pepper grinders into the price range of the average household budget. Imported grinders are of beautifully-turned wood with brass handles and tops. These are a good buy at $3.95 a pair.

Others that have black ebonite bases are outstanding. They have silvered handles and tops and are now selling at $5.95 a pair.

Anyone who loves to collect good china cups and saucers will want to get some of the white and gold ones that are now priced at $2.50. These are exclusive to the store in which I saw them and are made by an English firm that's known all around the world for its fine china. Quality of gold used to highlight the distinctive white cups and saucers is the finest.

Woman Estate Lawyer Urges That Her Sex Learn the Law

TODAY'S RECIPE

BEEF STEAK AND KIDNEY PIE

One-and-one-half pounds round steak, 1 large beef kidney, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, black, 1/2 teaspoon each: cloves, cinnamon, thyme, marjoram, nutmeg, 1/2 cup all-purpose flour, 3 tablespoons grated onion, 2 1/2 cups beef stock or beef bouillon (use canned or cubed), 1 bay leaf.

Cut steak into cubes. Cover kidney with boiling water. Let stand until white membrane shows, then remove membrane and cut out tubers. Cut kidney into pieces. Brown meat and kidney in a little hot fat. Add rest of ingredients. Cover. Simmer for 1 hour, or longer until meat is tender. Pour into baking dish (thicken gravy if necessary with a little flour). Top with flaky pastry. Make steam holes. Brush pastry with beaten egg. Bake in moderate oven, 375 degrees F., for 25 to 30 minutes to brown and bake pastry. Makes 6 servings.

Columbia lawyers here to study the effect their profession has on family life, Mrs. Hewitt said in an interview she does not think federal or provincial laws discriminate against women.

She said the fault lies with the women when they do not take the trouble to find out enough about the law as it affects themselves.

FIND OUT IN TIME

Widows often had to pay unnecessary and burdensome inheritance taxes on property that was rightfully theirs. In some cases a working wife might even have earned the property or effects on which she was being taxed.

"If she had found out in time," said Mrs. Hewitt, "it would have been a simple matter to identify whatever is herself and her children."

As further protection, Mrs. Hewitt suggested estate planning between husbands and wives while they are still young and have relatively little. In this way it is a simple matter to add as they accumulate goods rather than perform a complicated division of property later.

DEAR ABBY

It's His Decision, Mom!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: This problem is not mine. It is the problem of a man who is as devoted and decent as they come. His wife told him four months ago that she was carrying another man's child. They have two of their own. Surely a man can't be expected to support another man's child? He has considered divorcing her, but that would mean separation from his own two children unless he publicly declared their mother unfit to raise them. Where would that get him? Is there any way out of this, Abby? I am more than casually interested in this man because he is my son. CRUSHED.

DEAR CRUSHED: You are correct. The problem is not yours—it is your son's. If he wants to divorce his wife, he has grounds. If he reconsiders, for the sake of keeping his family together, help him by never mentioning the incident again.

DEAR ABBY: I am 13, fairly attractive and well-liked. I just found out that I am going to have to have braces. How can I look nice with a mouthful of hardware? "TIN GRIN."

DEAR TIN: Better to have a "tin grin" and a beautiful smile all your adult life than a mouthful of crazy mixed-up teeth.

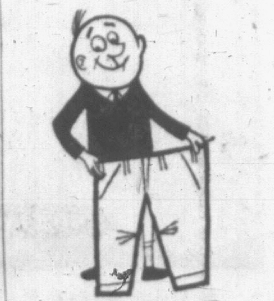

DEAR ABBY: What does a man do when his wife never goes to church with him and the children? She likes to sleep late on Sunday morning and I haven't the heart to wake her. People ask me if she is sick or out of town. It is very embarrassing. When I ask her please to go to church, she says she doesn't have to go to church to save her soul. How can I get her to go? EMBARRASSED.

DEAR EMBARRASSED: If she won't go to save her soul, maybe she'll go to save your face. Try a little tenderness.

Seattle Artists Enthrall Purists

By AUDREY JOHNSON

A recital of a type all too rare in Victoria was presented Wednesday night at Holyrood House. A program of "absolute" music that provided an opportunity to contemplate various aspects of three compositions in the same genre. It was a distinctive season opener for Victoria Musical Art Society. The violin-piano partners, Emanuel Zetlin and Elise Geissmar, guest artists from University of Washington music faculty, quickly proved themselves concert musicians of outstanding calibre.

It was as easily perceived that they have "played" themselves into a closely knit team. Their partnership is firm, balanced, acutely sensitive, and by selecting a program of sonatas — achieving contrast in the realms of period and nationality — they gave the evening a fine sense of completeness.

SKILLS MATCHED

An authoritative virtuoso command of his instrument by violinist Zetlin was matched by equal skill on the part of Miss Geissmar. The piano dominated brilliantly when it was meant that it should do so while remaining half of the duet.

Mr. Zetlin's touch, his crispness of attack and strong, vibrant tone bespeak the true disciple of the great Carl Flesch.

In both artists one recognizes the keen intellectual approach with regard to interpretation. The Mendelssohn F Major Sonata and Beethoven A Major were like pages of German poetry translated for the listener with complete clarity and integrity.

RECENT DISCOVERY

Particularly in the latter, the beautiful variations were handled with superb skill; the interplay between the two instruments, sustained and breath-taking.

The Debussy Sonata, while technically quite flawless lacked something of mood. Here Gallic charm seemed to have been submerged in sheer intellect.

An interesting footnote to the Mendelssohn Sonata was the fact that the manuscript was only discovered in the last decade by Yehudi Menuhin, and this was thought to be possibly the first performance of it in Canada.

BCE Plans Corporate Change

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia Electric Railway, a subsidiary of B.C. Electric Co., will go into voluntary liquidation later this year, it was announced Wednesday.

B.C. Electric said in a statement there would be no effect on employees or service. It would be aimed at simplification of the corporate structure.

B.C. Electric Railway is responsible at present for distribution of electricity, public transportation within city limits and rail freight services. These will be consolidated under B.C. Electric, which is already responsible for generation and transmission of electricity, distribution of gas and interurban bus transportation.

TOWNSEND TAKES JOB WITH WINE COMPANY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Peter Townsend flew home to Paris with his bride of 10 months today to a new career as a businessman—with an American firm.

Townsend, 45, decorated RAF hero of the Battle of Britain whose years have been filled with adventure, personal service to his King, and a highly publicized broken romance with Princess Margaret, plans to settle down to a steady office job as a wine merchant.

He will head the new European subsidiary of Gold Seal Vineyards, Inc., with the title of president and director-general. The French company, with main offices in Paris, will be known as Gold Seal Vineyards—France.

Navy Gets $1 Million Electronic Trainer

HALIFAX (CP)—The Canadian Navy put into operation Wednesday a million-dollar tactical trainer with an electronic brain to help instruct its officers and men in co-ordinating ship and plane operations in sea warfare.

The big installation—first in Canada—took almost three months to complete. It occupies two storeys in the joint Navy-Air Force Maritime Warfare School here.

Commodore M. A. Medland, representing the Atlantic coast flag officer, accepted the device from F. Youle, general manager of Redifon Limited of England, its builders.

The trainer, designed to augment tactical courses ashore, consists of complex electronics and mechanical components on two floors of the school. It enables ship and plane crews to practise and study problems that ships and aircraft are likely to encounter at sea.

Commodore Medland said the trainer is primarily intended "to assist us in our most important peacetime function—training for our primary mission at sea, that of submarine warfare."

Leading Canadian Painter on Show During November

Paintings by leading Canadian artists will be on display at the Art Gallery Nov. 1 to Nov. 30 during which time a jury will decide which of those submitted will be purchased.

Purchase is being made possible by a Canada Council $1,000 grant which has been matched by local contributions.

Annual meeting of the gallery will be held tonight at 8.

BBG Chief Denies Tory Pressure

OTTAWA (CP)—An outright denial that Conservative party pressure was applied to the Board of Broadcast Governors in the Peterborough television case was issued Wednesday by Dr. Andrew Stewart.

He rejected a Liberal by-election candidate's demand for his resignation and said the BBG decision — allowing the broadcast of film clips of a day in the life of a Conservative candidate — was reached after obtaining an independent interpretation from Ottawa lawyer A. R. B. Lawrence, former BBG counsel.

Dr. Stewart's statement — latest round in a by-election feud that began last week — reached reporters here shortly after one in which CCF Leader Hazen Argue said he will press for a Commons inquiry into the case after Parliament convenes Nov. 17.

STARLINGS: Airborne hazard.

A FRIGHTENING STORY

Air Authorities Get the Bird From Starlings

By JERRY BENNETT
WASHINGTON (NEA) — The squawk of a frightened bird may make air travel safer some day—if other birds can finally be made to understand that they are flying in the face of progress.

Federal Aviation Agency experts are studying ways to discourage flocks of small birds, like starlings, which menace flights, from roosting near airports.

Broadcasting a record of bird cries has always succeeded in driving away starlings from airports, but only for short periods of time. The birds always return.

This story might seem funny if it weren't so frightening. The FAA believes a flock of migrating starlings might have been sucked into the turbo-jet engines of an Electra airliner on Oct. 4 at Boston, causing a "flame out" which resulted in the deaths of 61 persons. So the FAA takes its recordings seriously.

The novel recording is made by holding a starling upside down in front of a microphone. The squawk is recorded on tape and broadcast over a loudspeaker. The system was developed by Dr. Hubert Frings and Prof. Joseph Jumbert of Pennsylvania State College and tested in 1954.

On three consecutive evenings, federal officials broadcast the tape from the fourth story of the Washington Archives Building as the starlings flew in to roost. Playing time was five to 20 seconds until the birds were driven away.

The starlings avoided the fourth floor and went elsewhere around the building where the sound couldn't be heard. They stayed there for the next three months until they migrated for the summer.

But the starlings eventually returned to their usual Archives roosts. The same thing happened in Air Force experiments at Wright Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio.

The Air Force also tried to rid itself of the starlings by emitting high pitched sirens above human hearing level, beating drums and firing guns into the air. These methods worked—temporarily.

In 1958, the General Services Administration, believing that the starlings might be more frightened by the cry of a natural enemy, the hawk, switched "vocalists."

The starlings disappeared. They were replaced by a flock of hawks.

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is after the starlings, too. Dr. James S. Lindzey, an FWS official, says that the starlings, introduced here at the turn of the century, feast upon improvements in U.S. crop growing methods and there are few environmental hazards to bother them. Therefore, the starling is not wanted on farmland either.

All agencies worried about the starling might hear the plight of the Navy, which has its own bird problems.

What the starling threatens to do to some flights around the country, the gooney bird has done to flights on Midway Island in the Pacific.

In one year, 538 Navy aircraft were involved in collisions with gooney birds (albatrosses), which inflicted damage totalling more than $156,000 and endangering persons on the planes.

So the Navy tried to frighten the birds off with weird noises, smoke them out and steal their eggs. When these methods didn't work, the sailors tried to "club" them. Finally they spent $110,000 to level the dunes near the runways, the gooney birds' take-off point. They also provided similar sites on another island to attract the birds there.

At last report, the problem on Midway has been reduced substantially—but it, too, has not been eliminated entirely.

New Compound Is for the Birds

By TONY DICKASON

The affination between pigeons, public statuary and buildings will soon end.

This is because of a new "secret" anti-roost compound which shortly will be available in Victoria.

The substance is crystal clear, so public statues and building ledges can be coated and not show it.

Authority for this information is a jolly Scotsman, James Glen Anderson, Victoria and Vancouver exterminator.

Birds, says Mr. Anderson, take one horrified look at the substance and wing quickly away. Nobody knows why. It was tried recently on the post office near St. Paul's, London, with great success.

While every city has its problem of birds—starlings, pigeons, seagulls—Victoria has another problem, perhaps more unique.

Beetles. First there are carpet beetles which start chewing at the edge of a carpet and work their hungry way to the centre. Result: A ruined carpet.

The carpet beetle problem in Victoria is more serious than in any other B.C. centre, said Mr. Anderson.

Twenty years ago there were few such beetles here; now they are legion.

There is also the powder post beetle, a little fellow that eats posts, joists and beams.

He is a problem in Victoria particularly in older homes. First sign of the "PPB" are "pinholes" in the wood, then small piles of sawdust, then complete disintegration.

There is nothing to be ashamed of in having pests in the home, Mr. Anderson said. Even the finest homes have them.

Bats were knocked out of the attic in an interior B.C. lodge where the Queen stayed on her last visit.

LABOR BOSS URGES COAL NATIONALIZATION

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP)—William (Bull) Marsh, boss of Nova Scotia's 7,000 coal miners, has called on the federal government to nationalize Canada's ailing coal industry.

Mr. Marsh, president of District 26 of the United Mine Workers' (Ind.) says the union has been "aggravated" into making the request to Prime Minister Diefenbaker because of a statement in London this week by British industrialist Sir Roy Dobson.

Sir Roy, managing director of A. V. Roe Limited, parent company of Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, was quoted by the Halifax Chronicle-Herald as saying Dosco will have to close three of its Cape Breton mines sooner than recommended by the Royal commission.

At Ottawa, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said he has had no communication with Sir Roy.

"FOREST" CEDAR SIDING WHAT IS FOREST SIDING? Made of dry 1 1/2" stock in 10 and 12-inch widths. "FOREST" siding is a new type of siding obtained from specially selected cedar logs sawn to show the beauty and character of knots, bark, etc. APPEARANCE? For homes and buildings where a distinctive and pleasing appearance is desired. Announced by heavy shadow lines. Sound weatherproof knots ranging in size from 2-inch in 6-inch widths to 4-inch in 12-inch widths add the rustic appearance of this grade. WHAT ARE ITS QUALITIES? "FOREST" siding, with its substantial thickness and great wood volume, adds to the structural strength and solidity of the building. The design of "FOREST" siding ensures a tight weather seal at the lap which, together with its thickness and flange-to-base principle, makes excellent material from the INSULATION standpoint. "FOREST" siding represents an economy to home-builders. Costing less than most other types of siding the design ensures easy fitting and speedy application at less labor cost. HOW IS IT APPLIED? As easily and quickly as common shiplap. Each piece of "FOREST" siding fits snugly on the one below and rests on only one mitre cut. HOW CAN IT BE FINISHED? If a natural finish is desired, use equal proportions of raw linseed oil and any well-known brand of waterproof sealer. This not only protects the wood surface but also brings out the natural beauty of the knots and the grain. If a colored finish is desired, "FOREST" siding can easily be painted. It is recommended that a sharp instrument be used to score the finished product underneath the cut (where it will not show) to stop formation of a vapor barrier. Gunfire In Havana

HAVANA (AP)—Heavy gunfire was heard for an hour early today in the Biltmore area of Havana. Police and military guards were reported to have shot at a low-flying plane.

Russia Aids Laos

Revolt Crushed

KATMANDU, Nepal (Reuters)—The Nepalese government said today police have crushed an attempt to overthrow the government in the Gorkha district of West Nepal. It said police opened fire on a crowd of 3,000 persons who surrounded government offices, killing seven and injuring six.

Flood Threat

LONDON (Reuters)—Rivers swollen by 24 hours of continuous rain rose rapidly in the west and south of England today, threatening serious flooding.

PARIS (UPI)—Angry right wing youths shouting for a "French Algeria" tossed tear gas bombs tonight into a left bank Latin quarter jammed with 4,000 students demonstrating for a peaceful end to the Algerian war.

The tear gas bombing brought chaos to the huge demonstration at the heavily guarded Mutualities hall, but there were no immediate reports of any casualties or arrests. The 4,000 students were inside the hall, while another 6,000 to 7,000 were outside chanting "Peace in Algeria" while a student orator urged them on under a revolving searchlight when the incident occurred.

Club-Swinging Police Smash Rioters

Police made several charges into groups of demonstrators, swinging their white clubs with gusto. One young man fell to the ground with blood streaming down his face. All traffic was halted in the narrow streets of the Bohemian student section as the singing, chanting crowds swarmed into the area in their monster demonstration for "Peace in Algeria." Thousands of tough, battle-ready police clamped a "virtual state of siege" on the quarter.

UN World Refugee Project Big Success

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—The World Refugee Year (WRY) project of the United Nations is one of the most successful international relief drives in history with a tentative total of $83 million in contributions, Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld announced today.

INDIRECT SLAP AT KENNEDY

Ike Urges 'Safe' Choice

STAUNTON, Va. (UPI)—President Eisenhower said today that on election day the American people must choose between "false leaders" and "safe leaders." The president, who flew here for a sentimental visit to his mother's birthplace and to honor the memory of Woodrow Wilson, made the statement in a speech extolling the First World War president.

Eisenhower also praised and identified himself with Sen. Harry F. Byrd, Virginia's senior Democrat who has with-held endorsing Sen. John F. Kennedy's bid for the presidency. In his speech praising Wilson, Eisenhower said "he was not a man who believed in bruising the ears of his fellow men with shrill cries of alarm."

Fleming Stands Firm On Dual Tax Proposal

ONTARIO TOO

Bennett Seeks 50-50 Split

OTTAWA (CP)—British Columbia is willing to take over the programs on which costs now are shared with the federal government if she gets a 50-50 formula on rental of income tax and succession duties, Premier Bennett said today.

He told reporters following a session of the Dominion-provincial fiscal conference that, if the federal government is sincere in maintaining that provinces which spend tax money should levy the taxes, the B.C. proposal should be acceptable.

His offer, similar to that of Ontario's Premier Frost, would involve the provinces receiving half the total collections from personal and corporation income taxes and succession duties.

Under the present tax rental agreement, due to expire March 31, 1962, the provinces receive about one-seventh of personal income tax collections, one-fifth of corporation income tax collections and half of succession duties.

Premier Bennett said that in return for adoption of his formula B.C. would take over the Trans-Canada Highway program, hospital insurance plan and various shared-cost social assistance schemes. But it would not include the universal old age pension, paid to all at age 70 entirely by the federal government.

He also said the suggestion of Premier Manning of Alberta for a joint tax imposed by the federal and provincial governments appeals to him.

Bail Set At $25,000 For Thornton

VANCOUVER (CP)—Bail was set at $25,000 today by Chief Justice A. C. DesBrisay in British Columbia Supreme Court for Clyde W. Thornton, a contractor from Bonner's Ferry, Idaho, convicted of contempt of court.

Chief Justice DesBrisay told lawyers at the hearing that if Thornton cannot raise the necessary bonds, the court will expedite the hearing of his appeal against his conviction. Thornton has been held at Oakalla prison since his conviction last Wednesday on the charge. Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi was fined $1,000 on a similar charge and both have since launched appeals.

A lawyer for Burton Glazer, of Seattle, who had brought the contempt charges, asked that bail be set at $30,000. Thornton's lawyer asked for $5,000 bail.

Thornton and Mr. Gagliardi were found guilty by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris of contempt for ignoring an injunction issued a year ago that no money be paid to Thornton by the highways department until $25,516 that Thornton had been found to owe Glazer was paid to a receiver.

Instead, the department sent a cheque for $79,000 to Thornton's bank at Bonner's Ferry.

CPR Plans Drastic Cutback

OTTAWA (CP)—Large-scale reductions in unprofitable passenger trains are planned by the Canadian Pacific Railway in the next 20 years, CPR Vice-President R. A. Emerson told the MacPherson royal commission on transportation today.

Mr. Emerson said the privately-owned CPR plans to scrap about $64,000,000 worth of passenger equipment, abandon many passenger runs and go all-out for money-making freight.

"This does not mean that passenger train service will disappear," he said in a major CPR brief that flatly opposed provincial proposals for federal subsidies on key branch lines or passenger runs that are losing money.

BURDEN IS HEAVY

The CPR officer said the burden of passenger losses amounted to $15,500,000 in 1958.

The passenger problem was outlined in an 84-page brief that spelled out CPR policies for the future—a brand-new public blueprint of a major revolution in railroading, on the privately-owned carrier in the wake of mounting competition.

Some major points in the CPR brief: 1. Effective Jan. 1, 1961, free privileges on the CPR are to be cancelled or restricted except for CPR employees, their dependents, certain government officials whose work takes them on trains, and several other categories including rail union officials.

2. The federal government should pay the railways for free transportation granted by law to MPs and senators. 3. Approval of the Board of Transport Commissioners is to be sought this year to abandon five branch lines totalling 77 miles in Western Canada and four branch lines involving 63 miles in the East.

TROOPS PULL OUT

Belgians 'Penetrating' Leopoldville

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—Unruly Congolese troops today pulled out of most—but not all—parts of Leopoldville and into nearby barracks.

The withdrawal was demanded by the United Nations after the troops ran wild here for several days. It was agreed on Wednesday when Congolese army strongmen and Joseph Kasavubu conferred with UN officials here.

Meanwhile, reliable sources said the UN here had evidence of increased Belgian "penetration" into the Congolese central and provincial administrations.

They said the Belgians had succeeded in re-establishing their political influence in Leopoldville and in strengthening their already strong control in breakaway Katanga province.

BIRDS BETTER BEWARE

'Good Faith' Plea By U.S. on Arms

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The United States said today that a step-by-step disarmament program could be completed in five to six years, if work on it started now in good faith from East and West.

"With good faith and a sense of urgency on both sides, it could take even less," U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth told the United Nations main political committee.

Wadsworth based his timetable on an assertion by Soviet Ambassador Valerian A. Zorin earlier this week that before conclusion of an agreement, on Russian "Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's proposal for total disarmament within four years there should be agreement on "some measures for confidence between states and creation of a more favorable atmosphere."

British Minister of State David Ormsby-Gore had asserted that Russia's insistence on a single, wrap-up treaty on all aspects of the problem could delay "disarmament for 40 years. Zorin had retorted that the Western proposals could delay disarmament for 100 to 200 years.

They said the Belgians had succeeded in re-establishing their political influence in Leopoldville and in strengthening their already strong control in breakaway Katanga province.

More Talks Planned

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming made more emphatic today the federal government's desire that the provinces shoulder the responsibility of levying their own share of income tax and succession duty.

He apparently gave the 10 premiers at the Dominion-provincial tax conference no hope that the federal government will boost its own taxes to meet their demands for more money.

The new federal tax offer, Mr. Fleming said, has opened the door to the provinces to raise more money on their own responsibility.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated to reporters that a further round of tax talks is likely, after the current three-day meetings end Friday, before a final decision is reached on a new tax deal to succeed the present plan which expires March 31, 1962.

MANY VIEWS HELD

He referred to "the multiplicity of views" presented by the 10 provinces at this meeting, and said "I wouldn't rule out the possibility" of a further conference. The current sessions are the second round of talks. The first conference was held in July.

There appeared no lessening of provincial opposition to the federal proposal to discard, after March 31, 1962, the present tax-rental system. Under this system, in most provinces, Ottawa collects all the personal and corporation income taxes and succession duties and turns over an agreed share to the provinces.

The federal proposal that the provinces should levy their own share of these tax fields, offered the provinces no greater share of the tax pie than they now get unless they are willing to boost taxes themselves.

Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland told reporters that eight provinces clearly want to continue the tax-rental system, while the other two are not opposed to it.

ALTERNATIVE OFFERED

Alberta's Premier Manning, who spoke at the closed conference today, suggested an alternative plan—a joint income tax and succession duty in which the two levels of government would share responsibility for taxing and divide the proceeds.

The Newfoundland and Alberta premiers wound up the round of provincial replies to Prime Minister Diefenbaker's proposal unveiled Wednesday.

Finance Minister Fleming's reply to the premiers—made in the closed sessions and relayed later to reporters by one of his staff—made clear that the federal government so far is not budging from its proposal.

He said it is impossible for Ottawa to boost its taxes to meet all the financial demands of the provinces.

If all the demands were legitimate, someone would have to raise larger revenues to meet the needs. The question, he said, boiled down to who was going to do this.

OTTAWA WANTS OUT

His statement, as reported to the press, made clear that the federal government doesn't want the responsibility.

The federal government's own expenditures were heavy and would undoubtedly become heavier.

Mr. Fleming said 31.5 per cent of the federal budget is for interest on the national debt.

Sharp Warning by West On Berlin Travel Curb

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States, Britain and France have warned Russia that any interference with air corridors into Berlin would create a "dangerous situation" for which the Soviet government "would be held fully responsible," it was disclosed today.

In identical notes delivered in Moscow Wednesday and released in the western capitals today, the three Western powers took a firm stand against recent growing Communist pressures on the potentially explosive Berlin situation.

At the same time, the Allies released the text of another set of identical Western notes to Russia dated Sept. 12. These accused the East German authorities of "harassing" persons travelling to Berlin "by prolonged delays in rail and road traffic, subjecting to frivolous police interrogation, and in many cases outright denial of passage."

"More than 1,000 individuals," the Sept. 12 notes said, "were thus, without cause, denied use of rail or road."

The U.S. Sept. 12 note said, "The United States government has never recognized any limitations on the freedom of movement within greater Berlin." It called the latest restrictions a "grave violation of Berlin's four-power status."

Air-Lift Record for RCAF In 'Argus' Hawaii Flight

68 On Board Non-Stop Plane

NEWEST AND BIGGEST RCAF aircraft, the turbo-prop "Argus," set record Wednesday for largest, longest non-stop airlift in RCAF history.

An Argus aircraft, stripped of its detection gear, flew from Comox to Hawaii Wednesday on the largest and longest single non-stop air movement of personnel in the history of the RCAF.

The plane carried 68 persons, compared with a normal crew of 18, and flew non-stop for 14 hours to cover 2,300 miles.

The aircraft, based at Greenwood, N.S., had been converted earlier for use in carrying troops to the Congo, but this mission did not materialize.

The RCAF personnel being carried to Hawaii are 50 ground support airman from 407 Maritime Patrol Squadron, five of whose Neptune aircraft are taking part in an anti-submarine warfare exercise with air and sea units of United States and Canadian navies.

Two Neptunes left Tuesday, two Wednesday, the fifth to proceed to the U.S. air base at Barber's Point, near Pearl Harbor, travelling via Alameda, Calif.

The Department of National Defence has stated the Comox-based Neptune will be replaced eventually by the 4,000-mile range Argus, largest RCAF aircraft in use. The Argus was developed for the RCAF from the Bristol Britannia, turbo-prop aircraft decided on as the answer to Canada's need to replace Lancasters formerly on coastal patrol duty.

Basic function of the electronics-loaded Argus is as a submarine hunter-killer.

Already taking part in the Hawaiian exercise, Canadian phase of which is under direction of Esquimalt Headquarters.

Three women complained to police of prowlers in a five-hour period Wednesday night and at one house a swim instructor kicked the intruder downstairs.

It was the latest outbreak in a series of prowlings and assaults which began two weeks ago.

Mrs. Marjorie Naysmith, 2947 Shelbourne, a popular swimming teacher in Greater Victoria, said she had just let a girl friend out of a back door around 10.30 when she heard someone there again and thought it was her friend returning.

"I opened the inside door and said, 'What did you forget?' There he was."

He grabbed me around the neck and muttered something about 'I'm going to kiss you'."

Mrs. Naysmith said, "I kicked him and he fell the way down our back stairs."

She described him as young, wearing a light-colored jacket and long black hair.

The description was similar to others given police after previous incidents.

Mrs. E. Blevitt, 3139 Irma, complained at 5.15 p.m. of a middle-aged man about five feet seven inches tall, or heavy build, dark complexion and wearing a checked jacket who rang her doorbell and looked in a front window.

When the door was answered the man hesitated, then ran.

At 9.46 a Mrs. Hobbs, of 708 Suffolk, said a youth about 18 years old peeked in her window from a tree. She said he wore long, black leather jacket with white stripes on the sleeves.

Esquimalt Court Sits Next Week

A court of revision will sit in Esquimalt municipal hall Tuesday at 5 p.m. to give Esquimalt property owners not as yet listed on the voters' list for the December municipal election a chance to add their names.

Mr. McVie, who is Canadian director of the Photographic Society of America, held its first northwest regional convention in Victoria.

The new chapter, comprising 35 members living on Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands, is the result of four years' organization by Victoria photographer James McVie, F.P.S.A.

"It will engage in community projects designed to foster photographic education in the Vancouver Island area," said Mr. McVie, who is Canadian director of the Photographic Society of America.

Mr. McVie with Stanley C. Dakin, A.R.P.S., of Nanaimo, and Thomas Haynes are directors of the new chapter which will meet in Victoria Art Gallery on the third Wednesday of each month at 8 p.m.

Next meeting is scheduled for Nov. 16.

John Muir is president of the chapter with Stanley Dakin as vice-president and Mrs. Evelyn Burt-Smith of Sidney as secretary.

The chapter will take in "more serious members" of Victoria Camera Club, HMC Dockyard Camera Club, Victoria Amateur Motion Picture Society, Oak Bay Camera Club and professional people, such as doctors and dentists, who are interested in photography.

Mr. McVie said he decided to form the chapter four years ago when the Photographic Society of America held its first northwest regional convention in Victoria.

"The convention was so successful and so educational I decided we should have a local chapter engaging in community projects."

"We shall bring first-class photographic experts here to address our members at the monthly meetings. In this way we hope to stimulate interest in photography locally and improve our standards."

... HERE AND THERE ... With NORMAN CRIBBENS

Many must have sensed subtle propaganda in the Russian movie of the Bolshoi Ballet performing Tchaikovsky's Swan Lake.

Between every dance the camera picked out members of the audience in the Bolshoi Theatre in Moscow—and what happy, contented, well-fed-looking citizens it picked!

They almost seemed to be saying "What a nice kind government to give us this lovely ballet!"

Addressing Victoria Kiwanis, G. M. Morris of Vancouver Board of Trade gave this definition of a club committee:

"The unwilling appointed by the unfit to do the unnecessary."

I say, Mr. Morris, that's a bit sweeping isn't it?

The average American family spends $500 a year on the mere packaging of its purchases, says Michael Barkway, Ottawa editor of the Toronto Star.

Mr. Barkway objects to Canadians having to pay for this packaging of goods imported from the States. "American manufacturers believe they can sell anything if it has the right kind of label," he said.

A British manufacturer shared this belief—for a while. He sold tins labelled "sliced pineapple." But inside were slices of turnip soaked in a pineapple-flavored chemical.

The fine was $1,500!

Congratulations to Maurice Johnson of the engineering division, B.C. Forest Service. His brochure The Forest Engineer has been adopted by the Stephen F. Austin State College, Texas.

The brochure was addressed to B.C. high school students looking for a career, but the American university seemed to think it would appeal equally to the youth of Texas.

Concerning effusions in this column about the need for more songs about British Columbia, Mrs. J. W. Fletcher of Esquimalt sends this quotation from the poet Andrew Fletcher (1703):

Let me make the songs of a nation
And I care not who makes it's laws.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

First meeting of the winter season of the Royal Society of St. George will be held in the YWCA, Courtney Street, Friday evening at 8.

Society president F. P. Boucher has just returned from a trip to England and Holland and will show the pictures he took there. The meeting is open to the public.

Regular meeting of Esquimalt council will be held in the municipal hall 7.30 p.m. Tuesday. Meetings are usually held Monday but that would mean a clash with Halloween next week.

Some councillors are members of Esquimalt Lions Club which is organizing two bonfires that night and the remainder hope to spend the evening with their children.

Two 13-year-old Colwood boys each were put on six months' probation when they appeared in Colwood juvenile court Wednesday charged with theft.

Police said the youngsters took two red signal lamps from along the E & N Railway right of way at Langford.

Old Age Pensioners Association, No. 1, will meet in the Knights of Pythias Hall, Cornerant Street, next Wednesday at 1.30. Business part of the afternoon will be taken up with nomination of officers.

A meeting of the general council of Greater Victoria PTA will be held at North Ward School, Friday at 8 p.m.

The Lake Hill School Fun Fair will be held Saturday, Nov. 5, from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. at the school.

There will be a sale of home cooking, sewing and knitting, plants and other items.

Movies will be shown and games organized for both adults and children.

Admission is free.

Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtz will be asked to call a special meeting of council as soon as possible to protest a 7 a.m. to 10 a.m. electricity "blackout" in the municipality Sunday.

Coun. James Bryant said the B.C. Electric plan to cut off electricity throughout the entire municipality during these hours was "crazy."

He said he would ask the reeve and council to take a stand against the move, designed to change the electrical supply from 4,000 to 12,000 volts.

"It must be done, but why can't it be done at a more reasonable time, such as 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.?" Coun. Bryant asked.

Council should have been consulted concerning the switchover time before it was scheduled, he added.

ASK THE TIMES

Q.—Are ladybugs harmful to the garden?—S.D.

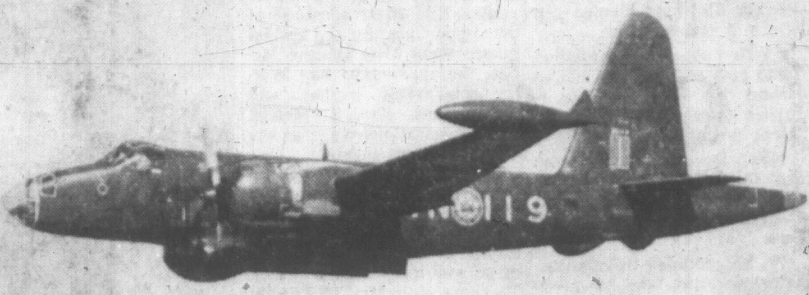

A.—There are about 150 different kinds of ladybugs, and only two types eat garden produce. The others eat plant lice and smaller bugs, so the good they do far outweighs the harm.

Q.—How long has the Loch Ness monster been known?—H.P.

A.—He, or it, has never actually been known, but there have been reports of a monster in the Northern Scottish lake dating back to the 1200s.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor, Questions and Answers will be published daily.

Wet, Rush-Hour Accident Leaves Woman Badly Hurt

Witnesses Sought To Downtown Crash

Police have asked any witnesses to come forward following a rush-hour crash that sent an 84-year-old woman pedestrian to hospital with multiple injuries Wednesday.

Mrs. Elizabeth Annie Armistage, 3116 Steele, is in fair condition with two broken legs, concussion and internal injuries, being treated at St. Joseph's Hospital.

She was in collision with a car driven by William H. Neill, 3855 Rowland, as she tried to cross Douglas between Larch and Finlayson in the rain at 5.15 p.m.

Police are holding Neill's car.

They quote him as saying he saw the woman as she walked westward and applied his brakes and horn, but the pedestrian kept going.

18-YEAR-OLD HURT

Eighteen-year-old Frederick David Greenidge, 218 Suzanne, is in "satisfactory" condition at Jubilee Hospital following another accident at 8 p.m. in Saanich.

A runaway car picked up momentum as it rolled 525 feet down Heath Drive and shot into Gorge Road to collide with his car, causing about $1,500 total damage and nearly knocking the Greenidge car into the Gorge.

The youth was admitted to hospital with shock, bruises, face and shoulder cuts.

SLIPPED BRAKES

Saanich police found a late model station wagon owned by Mrs. Margaret E. Clark, 2853 Heath, had slipped its hand brake, which Mrs. Clark said she applied in her driveway while she opened her garage doors.

She said she took out the car keys, left the parking lights on and set the brake. While her back was turned the car rolled back across Heath for 71 feet, then turned and rolled toward Gorge Road.

After the impact, Greenidge's car went for 114 feet along the edge of the Gorge before stopping.

Hospital Contract

A $4,300 contract for construction of a temporary wooden corridor connecting east and west wings of Royal Jubilee Hospital has been awarded to Herb Bate Ltd., lowest of five bidders.

The corridor will be used to transport food and patients between the wings when the old administration building in the centre is demolished to make way for the new $2,000,000 wing.

NO AUTHORIZATION

C. T. W. Hyslop, provincial superintendent of lands, wrote that the fill operation already had begun without authorization by B.C. Youth Brokerage, 35 Songhees Road, which has leased foreshore area.

Work now has been suspended pending specific approval from the lands and forests department for the land fill project.

New Camera Group Fosters Education

A Vancouver Island chapter of the Photographic Society of America—the first in Canada—has been formed here, it was announced today.

The new chapter, comprising 35 members living on Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands, is the result of four years' organization by Victoria photographer James McVie, F.P.S.A.

"It will engage in community projects designed to foster photographic education in the Vancouver Island area," said Mr. McVie, who is Canadian director of the Photographic Society of America.

John Muir is president of the chapter with Stanley Dakin as vice-president and Mrs. Evelyn Burt-Smith of Sidney as secretary.

The chapter will take in "more serious members" of Victoria Camera Club, HMC Dockyard Camera Club, Victoria Amateur Motion Picture Society, Oak Bay Camera Club and professional people, such as doctors and dentists, who are interested in photography.

Mr. McVie said he decided to form the chapter four years ago when the Photographic Society of America held its first northwest regional convention in Victoria.

"The convention was so successful and so educational I decided we should have a local chapter engaging in community projects."

"We shall bring first-class photographic experts here to address our members at the monthly meetings. In this way we hope to stimulate interest in photography locally and improve our standards."

Mr. McVie was chairman at the regional convention of the Photographic Society held at the Empress Hotel last June.

MONTHLY MEETING

Mr. McVie with Stanley C. Dakin, A.R.P.S., of Nanaimo, and Thomas Haynes are directors of the new chapter which will meet in Victoria Art Gallery on the third Wednesday of each month at 8 p.m.

Next meeting is scheduled for Nov. 16.

APPLES FROM JAPAN
SOLD IN OKANAGAN?

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP)—The Courier says Japanese apples are coming to British Columbia under a label made famous by Okanagan Valley produce.

The newspaper says canned solid-pack apples are being sold here under the "Aylmer" label with "Product of Japan" in smaller print. It says the product has not yet been offered in retail stores but has been distributed to restaurants, bakeries and institutions with a demand for large cans.

Ottawa Stands Firm on Dual Tax Proposal

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming made more emphatic today the federal government's desire that the provinces shoulder the responsibility of levying their own share of income tax and succession duties.

He apparently gave the 10 premiers at the Dominion-provincial tax conference no hope that the federal government will boost its own taxes to meet their demands for more money.

The new federal tax offer, Mr. Fleming said, has opened the door to the provinces to raise more money on their own responsibility.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated to reporters that a further round of tax talks is likely, after the current three-day meetings end Friday, before a final decision is reached on a new tax deal to succeed the present plan which expires March 31, 1962.

"Multiplicity of Views"

He referred to "the multiplicity of views" presented by the 10 provinces at this meeting, and said "I wouldn't rule out the possibility" of a further conference. The current sessions are the second round of talks. The first conference was held in July.

There appeared no lessening of provincial opposition to the federal proposal to discard, after March 31, 1962, the present tax-rental system. Under this system, in most provinces, Ottawa collects all the personal and corporate income taxes and succession duties and turns over an agreed share to the provinces.

The federal proposal that the provinces should levy their own share of these tax fields, offered the provinces no greater share of the tax pie than they now get unless they are willing to boost taxes themselves.

Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland told reporters that eight provinces clearly want to continue the tax-rental system, while the other two are not opposed to it.

Alberta Has Alternate Plan

Alberta's Premier Manning, who spoke at the closed conference today, suggested an alternative plan—a joint income tax and succession duty in which the two levels of government would share responsibility for taxing and divide the proceeds.

The Newfoundland and Alberta premiers wound up the round of provincial replies to Prime Minister Diefenbaker's proposal unveiled Wednesday.

Finance Minister Fleming's reply to the premiers—made in the closed sessions and relayed later to reporters by one of his staff—made clear that the federal government so far is not budging from its proposal.

He said it is impossible for Ottawa to boost its taxes to meet all the financial demands of the provinces.

If all the demands were legitimate, someone would have to raise larger revenues to meet the needs. The question, he said, boiled down to who was going to do this.

His statement, as reported to the press, made clear that the federal government doesn't want the responsibility.

The federal government's own expenditures were heavy and would undoubtedly be coming heavier.

Mr. Fleming said 31.5 per cent of the federal government's expenditures are covered by the provinces.

CPR Plans
Drastic
Cutback

OTTAWA (CP)—Large-scale reductions in unprofitable passenger trains are planned by the Canadian Pacific Railway in the next 20 years, CPR Vice-President R. A. Emerson told the MacPherson royal commission on transportation today.

Mr. Emerson said the privately-owned CPR plans to scrap about $64,000,000 worth of passenger equipment, abandon many passenger runs and go all-out for money-making freight.

"This does not mean that passenger train service will disappear," he said in a major CPR brief that flatly opposed provincial proposals for federal subsidies on key branch lines or passenger runs that are losing money.

BURDEN IS HEAVY

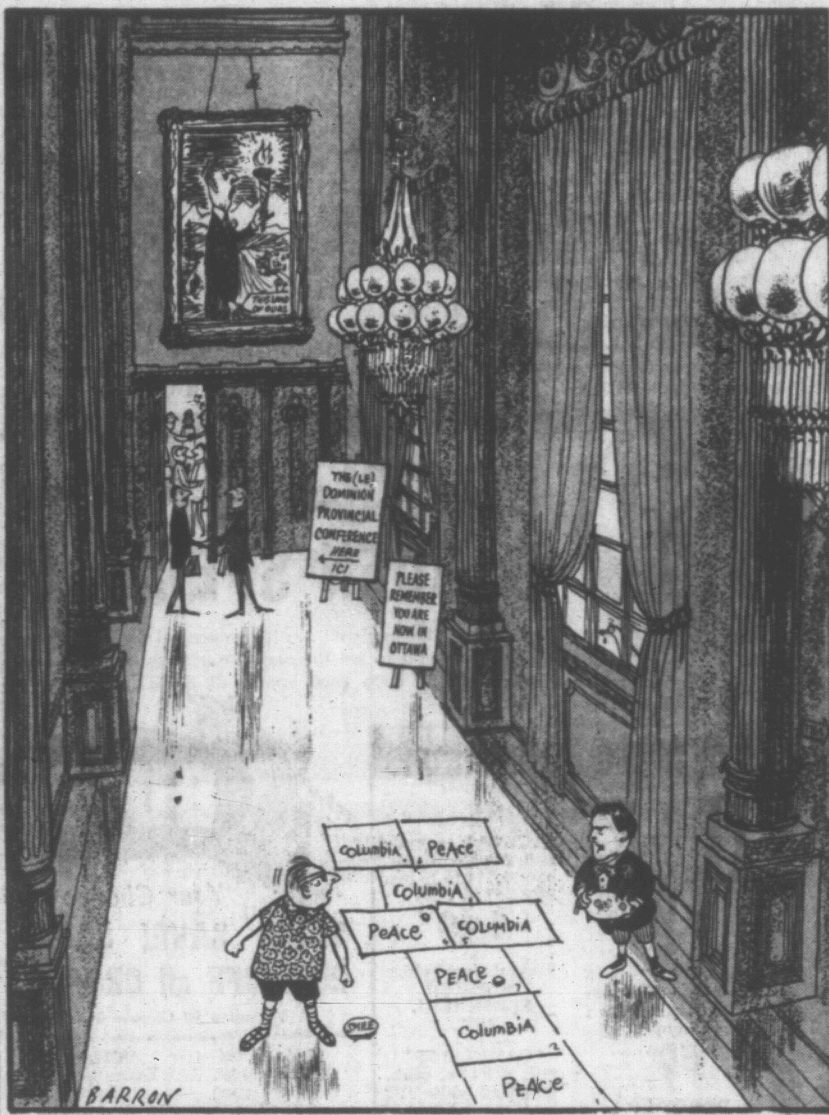

The CPR officer said the burden of passenger losses amounted to $15,500,000 in 1958.

The passenger problem was outlined in an 84-page brief that spelled out CPR policies for the future—a brand-new public blueprint of a major revolution in railroading.

Some major points in the CPR brief:

1. Effective Jan. 1, 1961, free privileges on the CPR are to be cancelled or restricted except for CPR employees, their dependents, certain government officials whose work takes them on trains, and several other categories including rail union officials.

2. The federal government should pay the railways for free transportation granted by law to MPs and senators.
3. Approval of the Board of Transport Commissioners is to be sought this year to abandon five branch lines totalling 77 miles in Western Canada and four branch lines involving 63 miles in the East.

Tear Gas Brings Chaos
To Algerian War Rally

PARIS (UPI)—Angry right wing youths shouting for a "French Algeria" tossed tear gas bombs tonight into a left bank Latin quarter building jammed with 4,000 students demonstrating for a peaceful end to the Algerian war.

The tear gas bombing brought chaos to the huge demonstration at the heavily guarded Mutualities hall, but there were no immediate reports of any casualties or arrests.

The 4,000 students were inside the hall, while another 6,000 to 7,000 were outside chanting "Peace in Algeria" while a student orator urged them on under a revolving searchlight when the incident occurred.

Scattered fighting broke out in the streets around the hall as police tried to keep counter-demonstrators away from the students who streamed out of the hall after the gas bomb explosions.

In a nearby street, police fought with right wing demonstrators shouting "Algerie Francaise."

The afternoon newspaper Paris-Presse reported that de Gaulle has warned French army commanders in North Africa not to oppose his policies in Algeria.

Every resident of a province will support his provincial government in getting them Canadians to provide his tax money.

Trouble with the unemployment problem is that the unemployment fixers seem to be unemployed.

Contractor
Still in Jail

VANCOUVER (CP)—Bail was set at $25,000 today by Chief Justice A. C. DesBrisay in British Columbia Supreme Court for Clyde W. Thornton, a contractor from Bonner's Ferry, Idaho, convicted of contempt of court.

Chief Justice DesBrisay told lawyers at the hearing that if Thornton cannot raise the necessary bonds, the court will expedite the hearing of his appeal against his conviction.

Thornton has been held at Oakalla prison since his conviction last Wednesday on the charge. Highway Minister P. A. Gagliardi was fined $1,000 on a similar charge and both have since launched appeals.

A lawyer for Burton Glazer, of Seattle, who had brought the contempt charges, asked that bail be set at $30,000. Thornton's lawyer asked for $5,000 bail.

Thornton and Mr. Gagliardi were found guilty by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris of contempt for ignoring an injunction issued a year ago that no money be paid to Thornton by the highways department until $25,516 that Thornton had been found to owe Glazer was paid to a receiver.

Instead, the department sent a cheque for $79,000 to Thornton's bank at Bonner's Ferry.

'Good Faith' Plea
By U.S. on Arms

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—The United States said today that a step-by-step disarmament program could be completed in five to six years, if work on it started now in good faith from East and West.

"With good faith and a sense of urgency on both sides, it could take even less," U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth told the United Nations main political committee.

Wadsworth based his timetable on an assertion by Soviet Ambassador Valerian A. Zorin earlier this week that before conclusion of an agreement on "some measures for confidence, between states and creation of a more favorable atmosphere."

British Minister of State David Ormsby-Gore had asserted that Russia's insistence on a single, wrap-up treaty on all aspects of the problem could delay disarmament for 40 years. Zorin had retorted that the Western proposals could delay disarmament for 100 to 200 years.

ONTARIO TOO

Bennett Seeks
50-50 Split

OTTAWA (CP)—British Columbia is willing to take over the programs on which costs now are shared with the federal government if she gets a 50-50-50 formula on rental of income tax and succession duties, Premier Bennett said today.

He told reporters following a session of the Dominion-provincial fiscal conference that, if the federal government is sincere in maintaining that the provinces which spend tax money should levy the taxes, the B.C. proposal should be acceptable.

His offer, similar to that of Ontario's Premier Frost, would involve the provinces receiving half the total collections from personal and corporate income taxes and succession duties.

Under the present tax-rental agreement, due to expire March 31, 1962, the provinces receive about one-seventh of personal income tax collections, one-fifth of corporate income tax collections and half of succession duties.

Premier Bennett said that in return for adoption of his formula B.C. would take over the Trans-Canada Highway program, hospital insurance plan and various shared-cost social assistance schemes. But it would not include the universal old age pension, paid to all at age 70 entirely by the federal government.

He also said the suggestion of Premier Manning of Alberta for a joint tax imposed by the federal and provincial governments appeals to him.

Revolt Crushed

TROOPS PULL OUT

Belgians

'Penetrating'

Leopoldville

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—Unruly Congolese troops today pulled out of most—but not all—parts of Leopoldville and into nearby barracks.

The withdrawal was demanded by the United Nations after the troops ran wild here for several days. It was agreed on Wednesday when Congolese army strongman Col. Joseph Mobutu conferred with UN officials here.

Meanwhile, reliable sources said the UN here had evidence of increased Belgian "penetration" into the Congolese central and provincial administrations.

SOVIET RAPS
NIXON A-TEST
'DEADLINE'

GENEVA (UPI)—The Soviet Union today criticized Vice President Richard Nixon's announced intention to impose a Feb. 1 deadline on the nuclear test ban talks here if he is elected president.

After today's 259th session, Soviet Delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin called Nixon's statement Wednesday night in Toledo, Ohio (see page 18), "an election campaign statement."

Tsarapkin said the Soviet Union is willing to hurry up and conclude a treaty, but the U.S. position "does not permit it."
